Opposition To Bar Powell Not Foreseen

Van Deerlin Sees No House Attempt To Interfere

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin says he has received indications House leaders won't try to stop his promised attempt to block seating of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell in the 90th Congress.

The California Democrat, talking with newsmen in Washington after a visit to New York to check on Powell's conviction for contempt of court, did not give the source of the "indications" he cited.

Many members feel Powell's chances of retaining his seat may lie with Speaker John McCormack and Democratic Leader Carl Albert. McCormack and Albert have remained silent publicly on the issue.

Powell, a Harlem Democrat, faces jail sentences totaling more than a year in New York stemming from his failure to pay a long-standing $164,000 libel judgment against him. His legal troubles prompted Van Deerlin's pledge to challenge Powell's right to take his seat when the new Congress convenes Jan. 10.

Van Deerlin's comments Tuesday came as a House Administration subcommittee neared the windup of a three-day probe of the payroll and travel expenses of the Education and Labor Committee, which Powell heads. The inquiry ends today.

Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, subcommittee chairman, said the panel had established that Powell took a 20-year-old committee clerk to his Bimini Island hideaway last August as a housekeeper and cook. She was there for more than two weeks on the committee payroll before Powell suddenly fired her, Hays said.

Hays said it also had been established that Powell had his committee staffers get airline travel tickets with committee credit cards for trips someone else took.

Powell's committee spent $73,000 on travel within the United States during the two years of the 89th Congress, Hays said, most of it between Washington, New York and Miami. He disclosed that Powell had given the Administration Committee $976 as reimbursement for trips that were not official committee business.

Asked who made the trips charged to committee staffers, Hays said, "I've got a good idea, but since I can't get it in the record I'm not going to say anything."

Powell, still in his island retreat off Florida, has refused an invitation to appear before the subcommittee.

Bobby Baker Lawyers Will Get Secrets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government will hand over to Bobby Baker's attorneys this week a secret recording that evidently figures large in the government's prosecution of the former secretary to Senate Democrats.

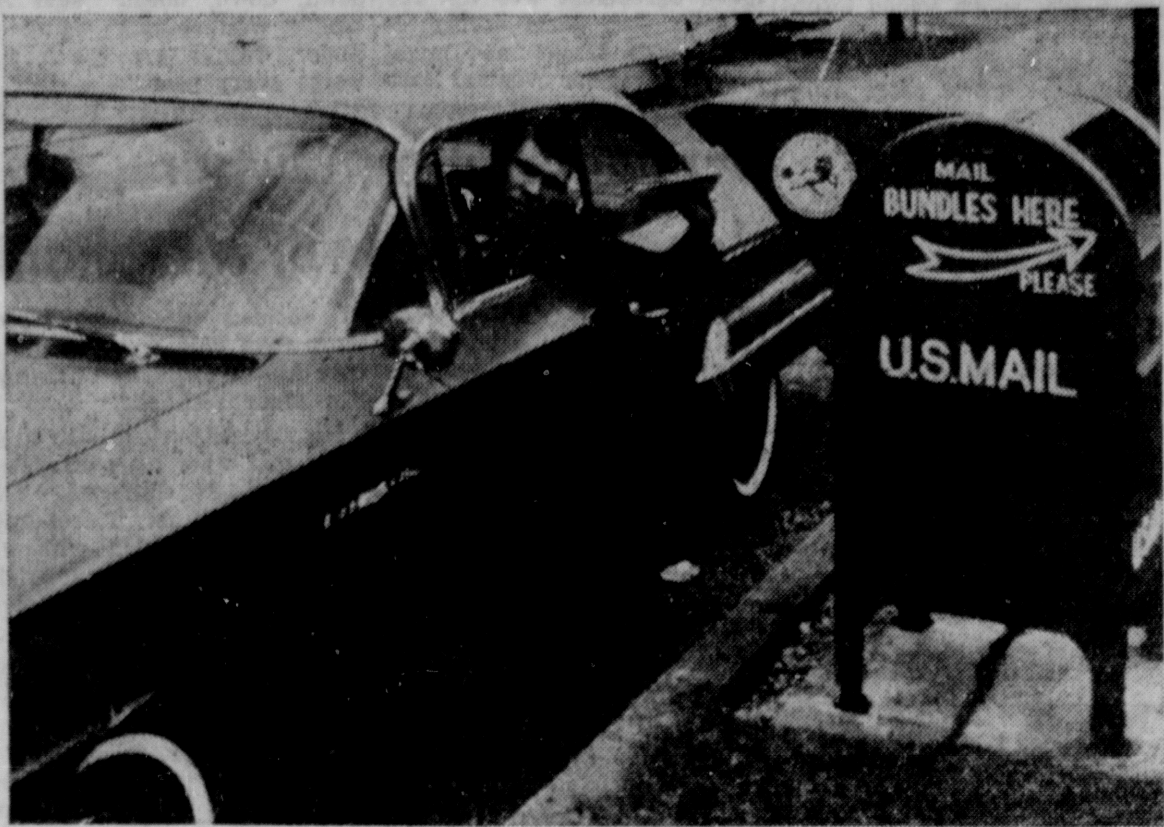

Plans for the transaction were disclosed following a ruling by U.S. Dist. Judge Oliver Gasch that Baker's lawyers are entitled under the federal rules of criminal procedure to any such recordings or written statements in government hands.

The judge didn't identify the nature of the material when he issued his written opinion Tuesday. William O. Bittman, the federal prosecutor, later parried questions about it.

However, during a hearing last month before Gasch on several motions by Baker's attorneys, Bittman admitted the existence of the recording although he would not say who, other than Baker, was a party to the conversation.

Bittman said separately that whatever material was covered by Gasch's ruling indeed would be in the hands of Baker's lawyers before the week was out.

Bittman claimed in an interview he could not discuss the nature of the material because if it became publicly known he would be running the risk of a prospective juror's reading about it in the newspapers.

Senator Wants Bombing Halted

Editor's Note: Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, has just concluded three months as a member of the U.S. delegation to the U.N. General Assembly. In this interview, he gives his views on the world organization, to Vietnam, Red China and U.S.-Soviet relations.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, says the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam not only has failed to achieve its objectives, it has stiffened the resolve of the North Vietnamese and is dimming the chances for a negotiated settlement of the war.

In an interview after he wound up his work as a U.S. delegate to the U.N. General Assembly, Church asked: "If we were to put the shoe on the other foot, can anyone conceive of the President of the United States going to the (conference) table while an enemy was dropping bombs on the United States?"

The Idaho Senator, often a critic of the administration's Vietnam policy, called for a halt in the bombing and also urged an indefinite cease-fire beginning during the Christmas holidays and lasting long enough to explore peace possibilities.

He warned against action which might provoke military intervention by Red China.

NEW YORK (AP) — Soviet poet Yevgeny Yevtushenko, concluding an American tour, says he has found the youth of the United States and the U.S.S.R., very alike — "united in contempt for everything artificial" and antagonistic to "pretty, empty words."

"The peace of the world depends on our two peoples," he said in a farewell plea for friendship and understanding between Americans and Russians.

Yevtushenko, who spoke through an interpreter at a news conference Tuesday at Queens College, said that when he gets home, "I will tell the Russians exactly what I am telling you." He is leaving Dec. 29.

Greece Loses Government; Premier Quits

ATHENS (AP) — Premier Stephanos Stephanopoulos resigned today, raising the possibility that politically troubled Greece may get elections a year early.

The 67-year-old premier's coalition government collapsed Tuesday night when Greece's conservative party, the National Radical Union (ERE), withdrew its support. The government took office in September 1965 after the nation's worst political crisis since the Communist civil war of 1947-49.

King Constantine accepted the premier's resignation and began consulting political leaders.

"The ERE does not want any other party to govern but the ERE," said Panayiotis Canelopoulos, the party's leader, in withdrawing support from the government.

ERE's 99 members in Parliament were the coalition's largest supporting bloc. The government held a slim 153 seats in the 300-seat, single-house Parliament.

Under the constitution, once a premier hands in his resignation, the king must either call for elections within 45 days or designate someone to try to form a new government.

The next regularly scheduled elections are due in 1968. Political sources said King Constantine may name a transitional government headed by a non-parliamentary personality to prepare for national elections next summer.

Americans Sentenced By Leningrad Court

Slaughter Off To Good Start

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Going into the dangerous holiday period, 1966 already has produced the second highest traffic death toll on record in Ohio.

If the final days of the year are as deadly as they were last year, the state's 29-year-old record for highway slaughter might fall.

Ohio started making official counts of highway deaths in 1936. In 1937, the toll was 2,616. The second highest yearly toll was 1941's count of 2,458—until a few days ago.

At least 114 deaths have been recorded this month, according to Ohio Highway Patrol and Associated Press figures, bringing the 1966 total to at least 2,466.

The threat of a new record is real. Last year's Christmas weekend death toll was 50, followed by one of 46 on New Year's weekend that again made the season of joy also a time of needless death.

Statistics are hard to bring alive. The following 1966 statistics of the Ohio Department of Highway Safety are impossible to bring alive.

October produced more traffic deaths, 290, than any month on record.

The death toll through 11 months was 2,352—higher than the entire 1965 count (2,333).

In the first half of the year, 1,112 deaths were reported. Since then, at least 1,354 have been reported.

The 1966 toll included nine persons killed in the worst accident in Ohio Turnpike history, over the Labor Day weekend.

COLUMBUS, Ohio AP — Ohio motorists got the bad news today from the Department of Highway Safety—66 fatalities and 3,400 injured expected during the Christmas and New Year's holiday weekends.

The department estimated 33 persons would die on Ohio's roads, and 1,700 would be injured on each of the long weekends, from 6 p.m. Friday, Dec. 23 to midnight Monday, Dec. 26, and from 6 p.m. Friday, Dec. 30 to midnight Monday, Jan. 2.

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The Rev. C. Harry Christopher said thieves broke into the offices of the St. Michael and All Angels Episcopal church recently and got away with $5.

The thieves gained entrance to the church through a window that had been stuck for two years. It works fine now.

Kenyon's enrollment is 824, including 49 in the theological seminary where enrollment has been dwindling. Tuition is $1,700 a year.

Bexley Hall is Ohio's Episcopal seminary, and a committee is presently considering whether it should remain in Gambier, relocate or cease to exist.

Enemy Planes Fly Near U.S. Cruiser

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Two U.S. F4B Phantom jets fired air to air missiles Tuesday at two enemy planes that were flying toward the U.S. cruiser Long Beach and the enemy craft vanished from radar scopes, an American spokesman announced tonight.

The enemy planes were tracked from over the city of Thanh Hoa, 80 miles south of Hanoi, the spokesman said. The Long Beach, a guided-missile cruiser, was operating in the Gulf of Tonkin 25 miles north-east of Thanh Hoa.

"When first sighted, the aircraft were headed toward the Long Beach," the spokesman said.

The U.S. aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk launched the two Phantom jets.

These locked onto the other planes with radar and fired air-to-air missiles. The number of missiles fired was not reported in Saigon.

The spokesman said the only result known here was that the enemy aircraft disappeared from the radar scopes of the Phantom fighters.

The spokesman said it was not known whether the planes intended to attack, but they were "headed toward the Long Beach."

The North Vietnamese Communist air force is not known ever to have attacked American ships sailing in the Gulf of Tonkin. Patrol boats, however, have fired on and damaged U.S. Navy ships.

The United States now has three aircraft carriers in the Gulf of Tonkin which launch bombing raids against the Communist mainland. The Long Beach is one of the surface

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The Viet Cong have stepped up their war bond drives and their taxes on South Vietnam's peasants and merchants to meet the rising cost of the Communist war effort, U.S. officials say.

In a study titled "Prospects for the Viet Cong," the U.S. AID mission in Saigon reports that Communist war bonds were virtually unknown 18 months ago.

But now, the report said, the National Liberation Front — the political arm of the Viet Cong — is estimated to raise 40 per cent of its budget by bond sales.

Another 40 per cent comes from taxes and duties collected at road blocks. The remaining 20 per cent comes from outside South Vietnam, presumably from Hanoi.

"The so-called Viet Cong war bond drive is now appearing in all parts of the country," the report said. "When a 'war bond sales team' visits a village every person or family is expected to buy a certain number."

In a Communist-controlled village the family rate is 7,000 to 10,000 piasters — about $49 to $70.

The Viet Cong civilian budget for such items as salaries, administration and medicine is estimated by U.S. officials at 1 billion piasters — about $7 million — per year. The military budget is placed at three times that amount.

The report said: "Upward to three-fifths of the total population (14 million people, half of whom are adults) provide some financial support for the Communists."

Viet Cong taxes are estimated to take as much as 50 per cent of a farmer's crop.

Yank Faces Prison Term, Friend Fined

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (AP) — A Soviet court today sentenced Buel Ray Wortham to three years in a restricted labor camp and fined Craddock M. Gilmour Jr. 1,000 rubles — $1,111.11.

The two American youths were found guilty of violating Soviet currency regulations. Wortham also was convicted of stealing a statue of a bear.

Wortham was sentenced to two years on the theft charge and three years on the currency charge, the two terms to run concurrently.

Wortham first learned of his sentence after it had been read in Russian in the courtroom, when a spectator held up three fingers.

The North Little Rock, Ark., resident shook his head sadly and knowingly but otherwise showed no emotion.

The sentence was later read in English.

Gilmour showed no emotion during the reading.

As the court session ended, Wortham, 25, turned to Gilmour and shook hands with him. Wortham looked as if he might be close to tears. He was marched out by four armed guards.

Harlan G. Moen, consular officer from the U.S. Embassy in Moscow who attended the trial, said that Wortham's lawyer would appeal within the seven-day period allowed by Soviet law.

The three-year sentence on Wortham begins Oct. 1, the day the two youths were arrested as they tried to drive out of the Soviet Union to Finland after a one-week tourist visit.

The 18-inch cast-iron statue of the bear was found in their car, starting criminal proceedings which led to the three-day trial that ended today.

Wortham's sentence included confiscation of his car. He was also charged 163 rubles — $181.11 — as his share of court costs.

The sentence of Gilmour also included confiscation of souvenirs that Gilmour had bought with illegally obtained rubles. Gilmour was assessed 83.63 rubles — $92.92 — as his share of costs.

The type of labor camp to which Wortham was ordered is one of a restricted regime. Such camps are used for first offenders who have committed dangerous crimes. They work about eight hours a day on crafts and trade work such as woodworking or machine operating.

During nonworking hours the prisoners are allowed to move about freely within the camp, including using whatever library

Peace Marchers Are Pelted by Eggs, Snowballs

CUYAHOGA FALLS, Ohio (AP) — A group of collegiate peace marchers head closer to Cleveland today on another lap of a 50-mile march to protest U.S. military action in Vietnam.

The marchers, who left Massillon Sunday and have been averaging 10 to 15 miles per day, were pelted by raw eggs at Uniontown Monday, according to Larry Cox of Avon Lake, leader of the group.

There were a few snowballs Tuesday on the march from Uniontown, but no eggs, said Cox, 21, Mount Union College senior.

The 28 marchers made almost 15 miles Tuesday to a point just outside Cuyahoga Falls.

They are expected to end their march with a rally in Cleveland Christmas Eve.

The spokesman said it was not known whether the planes intended to attack, but they were "headed toward the Long Beach."

The North Vietnamese Communist air force is not known ever to have attacked American ships sailing in the Gulf of Tonkin. Patrol boats, however, have fired on and damaged U.S. Navy ships.

The United States now has three aircraft carriers in the Gulf of Tonkin which launch bombing raids against the Communist mainland. The Long Beach is one of the surface ships.

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The Viet Cong have stepped up their war bond drives and their taxes on South Vietnam's peasants and merchants to meet the rising cost of the Communist war effort, U.S. officials say.

In a study titled "Prospects for the Viet Cong," the U.S. AID mission in Saigon reports that Communist war bonds were virtually unknown 18 months ago.

But now, the report said, the National Liberation Front — the political arm of the Viet Cong — is estimated to raise 40 per cent of its budget by bond sales.

Another 40 per cent comes from taxes and duties collected at road blocks. The remaining 20 per cent comes from outside South Vietnam, presumably from Hanoi.

"The so-called Viet Cong war bond drive is now appearing in all parts of the country," the report said. "When a 'war bond sales team' visits a village every person or family is expected to buy a certain number."

In a Communist-controlled village the family rate is 7,000 to 10,000 piasters — about $49 to $70.

The Viet Cong civilian budget for such items as salaries, administration and medicine is estimated by U.S. officials at 1 billion piasters — about $7 million — per year. The military budget is placed at three times that amount.

The report said: "Upward to three-fifths of the total population (14 million people, half of whom are adults) provide some financial support for the Communists."

Viet Cong taxes are estimated to take as much as 50 per cent of a farmer's crop.

Yank Faces Prison Term, Friend Fined
LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (AP) — A Soviet court today sentenced Buel Ray Wortham to three years in a restricted labor camp and fined Craddock M. Gilmour Jr. 1,000 rubles — $1,111.11.

The two American youths were found guilty of violating Soviet currency regulations. Wortham also was convicted of stealing a statue of a bear.

Wortham was sentenced to two years on the theft charge and three years on the currency charge, the two terms to run concurrently.

Wortham first learned of his sentence after it had been read in Russian in the courtroom, when a spectator held up three fingers.

The North Little Rock, Ark., resident shook his head sadly and knowingly but otherwise showed no emotion.

The sentence was later read in English. Gilmour showed no emotion during the reading.

As the court session ended, Wortham, 25, turned to Gilmour and shook hands with him. Wortham looked as if he might be close to tears. He was marched out by four armed guards.

Harlan G. Moen, consular officer from the U.S. Embassy in Moscow who attended the trial, said that Wortham's lawyer would appeal within the seven-day period allowed by Soviet law.

The three-year sentence on Wortham begins Oct. 1, the day the two youths were arrested as they tried to drive out of the Soviet Union to Finland after a one-week tourist visit.

The 18-inch cast-iron statue of the bear was found in their car, starting criminal proceedings which led to the three-day trial that ended today.

Wortham's sentence included confiscation of his car. He was also charged 163 rubles — $181.11 — as his share of court costs.

The sentence of Gilmour also included confiscation of souvenirs that Gilmour had bought with illegally obtained rubles. Gilmour was assessed 83.63 rubles — $92.92 — as his share of court costs.

The type of labor camp to which Wortham was ordered is one of a restricted regime. Such camps are used for first offenders who have committed dangerous crimes. They work about eight hours a day on crafts and trade work such as woodworking or machine operating.

During nonworking hours the prisoners are allowed to move about freely within the camp, including using whatever library. (Continued on Page 2)

Peace Marchers Are Pelted by Eggs, Snowballs
CUYAHOGA FALLS, Ohio (AP) — A group of collegiate peace marchers head closer to Cleveland today on another lap of a 50-mile march to protest U.S. military action in Vietnam.

The marchers, who left Massillon Sunday and have been averaging 10 to 15 miles per day, were pelted by raw eggs at Uniontown Monday, according to Larry Cox of Avon Lake, leader of the group.

There were a few snowballs Tuesday on the march from Uniontown, but no eggs, said Cox, 21, Mount Union College senior.

The 28 marchers made almost 15 miles Tuesday to a point just outside Cuyahoga Falls.

They are expected to end their march with a rally in Cleveland Christmas Eve.

The case went to Presiding Judge Anna I. Isakova, Nikolai A. Trunov and Boris A. Derugin after Gilmour, 24, of Salt Lake City, Utah, made a final statement.

MOSCOW (AP)—The acting head of the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, Minister-Counselor John C. Guthrie, today called a three-year prison sentence on a young American, harsh and asked higher Soviet authorities to commute or suspend it.
Guthrie issued his statement shortly after the Leningrad City Court reached its verdict to Craddock M. Gilmour Jr. and Buel Ray Wortham. Wortham was given three years in prison. Gilmour was fined 1,000 — $1,111.11.
"We are of course glad that after over two months of confinement Mr. Gilmour can return home," Guthrie said.
"As for Mr. Wortham's sentence, the embassy regards it, and I am sure most Americans will regard it, as harsh and out of all proportion to the relatively minor legal infractions with which he was charged."
"In our view his more than two months confinement has already been more than ample punishment. I would hope, therefore, that the proper authorities will find it appropriate to commute or suspend Mr. Wortham's sentence."

Patman Attacks Abuses By Private Foundations

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Wright Patman has charged "profit and comfort, not charity" have been the main business of many private foundations. He called on the new Congress to tighten the requirements for such institutions to be tax-exempt.
Patman, a Texas Democrat, made the comments in the report filed Tuesday with a House Small Business subcommittee he heads. The subcommittee staff studied the books of 573 foundations for the years 1961-1964.
During this period, the report said, the foundations received $4.6 billion, including "capital gains, mostly from stock market transactions, of $2.3 billion."
But Patman contended that much of the receipts increased the capital of the foundations, since less than half — $2.2 billion — was disbursed to the various causes served, while nearly $500 million went for expenses.
President Johnson asked Congress last January to legislate against abuses of the tax exemption privilege. The Treasury submitted such legislation, but Congress adjourned without completing action.
The report cited, among others, the American Box Board Co. Foundation of Grand Rapids, Mich., saying it had gross income of $31,635 during 1964 — but also had expenses of $31,268, including "miscellaneous expenses" of $24,452.
It said the Julian S. Eaton Educational Foundation, set out in its low literature that its primary purpose is to recruit football players for the University of Miami (Fla.)
The Joseph B. Whitehead Foundation of Atlanta, Ga., pays $18,000 a year to the wife of the late Joseph B. Whitehead and paid $8,000 to a former wife until her remarriage, the report said.
Patman said present law does not require that capital gains by foundations be distributed to charity and that even the requirement that dividends and interest be distributed is not strictly enforced.

Shades of St. Nicholas, It's Happening All Over!

BRICK TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP)—The beard is the same, the red outfit looks the same, and even the eyes twinkle the same. But there is definitely something different about one store's Santa Claus this year.
Could it be the voice is a little softer, a little higher even And maybe the movements are a bit gentler to
Yes, for this year, Mama Santa has taken over.
The face behind the beard belongs to Sophie Deputa, 53, who filled in at the Steinbach Co. when the regular Santa caught cold the day before Thanksgiving.
The switch has been a hit with older and younger shoppers. The youngest don't even know the difference. But some of the older ones challenged her.
"She's a mama Santa Claus," said one little girl.
Mrs. Deputa answers: "I'm Santa's helper. Santa is so busy this time of the year he needs lots of new helpers. There's only one real Santa Claus, he comes Christmas Eve."
Mama Santa, who has two sons, 22 and 24, has dropped the traditional "Ho, ho ho" and speaks in a very soft voice so as not to frighten the younger children.
"In our view his more than two months confinement has already been more than ample punishment. I would hope, therefore, that the proper authorities will find it appropriate to commute or suspend Mr. Wortham's sentence."

Germans Nab Rhodesia Currency

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—West German authorities, acting at the request of the British Embassy in Bonn, have seized 28 tons of Rhodesian currency printed on order of Prime Minister Ian Smith's Rhodesian government, British sources reported today.
The sources said 2.2 tons of the currency were seized at the Frankfurt airport Tuesday night, shortly before the shipment was to be flown to Salisbury on a regularly scheduled South African Airways flight, and the remainder was taken over at a printing firm in Munich.
There was no immediate estimate of the value of the currency, but the sources said the shipment obviously contained the equivalent of millions of dollars.
British sources said the action was taken because London regards the Smith regime as illegal and regards any money printed by it as counterfeit currency.
The British government has set up a Rhodesian reserve bank in exile at London with Sir Sidney Cain as governor.
The banknotes seized in West Germany carried the imprint "Reserve Bank of Rhodesia" and the signature, "Bruce, governor."

Enemy . . . 21st U.N. Session Was Notable

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Most U.N. delegates agreed today that the 21st session of the General Assembly had been a productive one with some notable achievements.
The United States and the Soviet Union, which joined forces to pave the way for unanimous approval of a treaty banning the use of outer space for war, both endorsed the accomplishments of the session that ended Tuesday.
U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg described the assembly as a constructive one. He expressed regret that it had witnessed no forward movement on Vietnam but said he believed progress had been made on disarmament, outer space and human rights.
Goldberg said the reappointment of U Thant as secretary-general "will stand first on the list of outstanding accomplishments of the session."
Soviet Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko said the assembly had "considered important questions in a serious and urgent manner."
Many delegates felt that the space agreement was the outstanding step taken during the three-month session and might pave the way for eventual East-West agreement on arms control on earth.
The only sour note was sounded by Communist Albania, regarded as Red China's mouthpiece in the United Nations.
"The United Nations is going down, down, down," said Albanian Ambassador Hallim Budo. "Things are getting worse every year."

Service Station Owner Becomes Goodwill Merchant

CLEVELAND (AP)—If Jolly St. Nick ever gets a motorized sleigh, he'll probably buy his gasoline from Anthony (Gitch) Nativio, who runs a service station in the suburb of Cleveland Heights.
Because every December, Nativio closes down part of his station—at a personal cost of $1,000, he says—and turns it into a Christmas goodwill station. "Fifteen years ago," he said, "I decided to do something more than give away those 10-cent ice scrapers at Christmas like other stations."
His friends pitch in—the tires, jacks and other tools disappear overnight. A Christmas tree graces one corner. Tinsel-draped tables are filled with hot food, wine and coffee. Bright carpets and drapes complete the disguise.
Gitch then declares open house.
Morning, noon and night, his station becomes the neighborhood meeting place. Policemen, businessmen and customers mingle with the Nativio family.
"It averages 200 to 300 people a day," Gitch exclaims. His goodwill is contagious.
"Few people try to take advantage of this in the wrong way. Instead they get into the Christmas spirit, bring in their own foods, stick their dollar bills on a Christmas tree to aid mentally retarded children, and look much happier for it all."
There was $500 on the Christmas tree so far this year, according to Gitch.
Although gas is still pumped outside, the loss in lubrication and repair work ordinarily done inside amounts to "well over $1,000," said Nativio.
"You can't think of this as a business, just think of it as Christmas," he said.

It said the Julian S. Eaton Educational Foundation, set out in its low literature that its primary purpose is to recruit football players for the University of Miami (Fla.)

The Joseph B. Whitehead Foundation of Atlanta, Ga., pays $18,000 a year to the wife of the late Joseph B. Whitehead and paid $6,000 to a former wife until her remarriage, the report said.

Patman said present law does not require that capital gains by foundations be distributed to charity and that even the requirement that dividends and interest be distributed is not strictly enforced.

Shades of St. Nicholas, It's Happening All Over!

BRICK TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — The beard is the same, the red outfit looks the same, and even the eyes twinkle the same. But there is definitely something different about one store's Santa Claus this year.

Could it be the voice is a little softer, a little higher even And maybe the movements are a bit gentler to

Yes, for this year, Mama Santa has taken over.

The face behind the beard belongs to Sophie Deputa, 53, who filled in at the Steinbach Co. when the regular Santa caught cold the day before Thanksgiving.

The switch has been a hit with older and younger shoppers. The youngest don't even know the difference. But some of the older ones challenged her.

"She's a mama Santa Claus," said one little girl.

Mrs. Deputa answers: "I'm Santa's helper. Santa is so busy this time of the year he needs lots of new helpers. There's only one real Santa Claus, he comes Christmas Eve."

Mama Santa, who has two sons, 22 and 24, has dropped the traditional "Ho, ho ho" and speaks in a very soft voice so as not to frighten the younger children.

Germans Nab Rhodesia Currency

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — West German authorities, acting at the request of the British Embassy in Bonn, have seized 28 tons of Rhodesian currency printed on order of Prime Minister Ian Smith's Rhodesian government, British sources reported today.

The sources said 2.2 tons of the currency were seized at the Frankfurt airport Tuesday night, shortly before the shipment was to be flown to Salisbury on a regularly scheduled South African Airways flight, and the remainder was taken over at a printing firm in Munich.

There was no immediate estimate of the value of the currency, but the sources said the shipment obviously contained the equivalent of millions of dollars.

British sources said the action was taken because London regards the Smith regime as illegal and regards any money printed by it as counterfeit currency.

The British government has set up a Rhodesian reserve bank in exile at London with Sir Sidney Cain as governor.

The banknotes seized in West Germany carried the imprint "Reserve Bank of Rhodesia" and the signature, "Bruce, governor."

U.S. B52 bombers pounded at North Vietnamese troops just north of the demilitarized zone today in a continuation of raids to smash a fresh Communist drive south before it starts.

While the big bombers struck less than half a mile above the buffer area, U.S. Marines clashed with Communist forces about 15 miles south of the demilitarized zone.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, told his troops in a Christmas message that the world Christ sought to build "will move closer to reality if we continue to assist the Vietnamese people in their search for peace and tranquility."

It was learned that Westmoreland's headquarters also issued orders to U.S. forces to resume "normal military operations" after the 48-hour Christmas truce comes to an end at 7 a.m. Saigon time next Monday.

The order was sent out as fresh public appeals were addressed to the combatant countries to use the Christmas truce as a means of arranging peace talks. The latest appeals came separately from Emperor Hanlie Sallase of Ethiopia and from Abdul Rahman Pashwak of Afghanistan, president of the U.N. General Assembly.

21st U.N. Session Was Notable

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Most U.N. delegates agreed today that the 21st session of the General Assembly had been a productive one with some notable achievements.

The United States and the Soviet Union, which joined forces to pave the way for unanimous approval of a treaty banning the use of outer space for war, both endorsed the accomplishments of the session that ended Tuesday.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg described the assembly as a constructive one. He expressed regret that it had witnessed no forward movement on Vietnam but said he believed progress had been made on disarmament, outer space and human rights.

Goldberg said the reappointment of U Thant as secretary-general "will stand first on the list of outstanding accomplishments of the session."

Soviet Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko said the assembly had "considered important questions in a serious and urgent manner."

Many delegates felt that the space agreement was the outstanding step taken during the three-month session and might pave the way for eventual East-West agreement on arms control on earth.

The only sour note was sounded by Communist Albania, regarded as Red China's mouthpiece in the United Nations.

"The United Nations is going down, down, down," said Albanian Ambassador Halim Budo. "Things are getting worse every year."

Assembly President Abdul Rahman Pazhwak reflected general anxiety over Vietnam by closing the session with a personal appeal to both sides to declare willingness "to seek only a peaceful solution" and readiness to enter into negotiations.

"It is obvious that the United Nations cannot intervene in any way in the war in Vietnam," Pazhwak said. "But it is equally clear, as has been demonstrated in the general debate and throughout the diplomatic contacts made by this assembly, that a majority of nations cannot remain aloof when questions of war and peace are at stake."

Delegates were encouraged by reports of new efforts by Thant to set up peace talks. A spokesman said the secretary-general would use quiet diplomacy to try to get negotiations started. Since the United States sent Thant a request Monday to take whatever steps he deemed necessary toward that end, the secretary-general has conferred with the Soviet Union's Fedorenko and Algerian Ambassador Tewfik Bouattoura.

Service Station Owner Becomes Goodwill Merchant

CLEVELAND (AP) — If Jolly St. Nick ever gets a motorized sleigh, he'll probably buy his gasoline from Anthony (Gitch) Nativio, who runs a service station in the suburb of Cleveland Heights.

Because every December, Nativio closes down part of his station—a personal cost of $1,000, he says—and turns it into a Christmas goodwill station. "Fifteen years ago," he said, "I decided to do something more than give away those 10-cent ice scrapers at Christmas like other stations."

His friends pitch in—the tires, jacks and other tools disappear overnight. A Christmas tree graces one corner. Tinsel-draped tables are filled with hot food, wine and coffee. Bright carpets and drapes complete the disguise.

Gitch then declares open house. Morning, noon and night, his station becomes the neighborhood meeting place. Policemen, businessmen and customers mingle with the Nativio family.

"It averages 200 to 300 people a day," Gitch exclaims. His goodwill is contagious.

"Few people try to take advantage of this in the wrong way. Instead they get into the Christmas spirit, bring in their own foods, stick their dollar bills on a Christmas tree to aid mentally retarded children, and look much happier for it all."

There was $500 on the Christmas tree so far this year, according to Gitch.

Although gas is still pumped outside, the loss in lubrication and repair work ordinarily done inside amounts to "well over $1,000," said Nativio.

"You can't think of this as a business, just think of it as Christmas," he said.

Motorist Cited After Accident

Mary H. Glover, 51, of 703 N. Pickaway St., was cited by Circleville Police for failure to yield the right of way following an accident Tuesday at Northridge Road and Pickaway St.

Wells suffered a laceration of the scalp. Both cars were extensively damaged, officers said.

Firemen Douse Blaze

The Circleville Fire Department was called to 717 Maplewood Ave. at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday to douse a fire in a truck load of trash.

The truck is owned by Carl Riffle.

Harry Justice 225 E. Union St. told Circleville Police Tuesday a bicycle owned by his son was missing. The bike was found by Circleville Patrolman Jack Mills at Washington and Ohio Sts. later in the day.

Is More Involved?

Something has been happening to the residential construction industry in the United States for many months, but that something — in the form of less available and more costly mortgage money — is reaching farther down into the roots of home ownership with each passing month.

By now, many persons accustomed to years of buying on increasingly easy credit have discovered there has been a change in the bottomless credit pit. Somebody put a floor in it, and that floor is rising. Money is loaned these days on shorter terms at higher interest rates to better credit risks.

Although inflation and the tighter money policies of the administration have affected all types of consumer loans, it is the home building industry which has suffered some of the most far-reaching consequences.

For example, the Home Loan Bank Board has issued a survey comparing mortgages being issued today to those of a year ago. The comparisons point to what has happened. For mortgages on existing homes, the average interest rate in October was 6.49 per cent, up from 5.87 per cent a year ago.

New home mortgages in October cost, on an average, 6.32 per cent interest, compared to 5.75 per cent the same month in 1965. In addition, the average term of mortgages dropped from 24.8 years last year to 23.6 years in 1966. And the average loan was for 71 per cent of the purchase price as compared to 73.8 per cent last year.

Housing starts in October were exceptionally poor at an annual rate of 848,000. Last year more than 1.5 million residential homes were started. Even more revealing is the fact new housing starts in October were only slightly higher than the 657,000 homes which are now being torn down annually because of urban renewal, fires or some other reason.

These are the statistics on what is happening in the home construction industry. What is needed now to tell the full story are the reasons. Are tight money and higher interest rates the only reasons, or do rising property taxes, higher construction costs and a generally deteriorating responsibility on the part of both state and federal governments to protect private property rights enter into this?

Before the construction industry can hope to recover completely from the doldrums it has sunk into, it will have to answer the question why as thoroughly as it now knows what has happened.

Nihilist Parallel

In pre-revolutionary Russia, there was something called the Narodnik movement. The Narodniks were young people, sons and daughters of the intelligentsia with an occasional scion of a noble house interspersed, who believed in going to "the people" to carry out good works. It was a promising movement, but World War I cut it short, and, with the collapse of the Russian armies and the subsequent failure of the Kerensky government, it never had a chance of revival. The Russian muzhiks, the peasants, were left to the tender mercies of Lenin's Bolsheviks, who used them to forward the Communist takeover and then, in the man-made famine of the Thirties, deprived them not only of their land but their lives.

To anyone who has a taste for analogies, it must seem that the Narodnik movement has been reborn in the United States. This was brought home to me the other day when Governor George Romney, speaking at a National Association of Manufacturers luncheon in New York, gave his businessmen audience a rather detailed briefing on the 4,000 Michigan college students who had volunteered to do remedial work in slum area grammar schools throughout their state. Such organizations as Operations Crossroads Africa, a voluntary predecessor of the government-operated Peace Corps, represent an extension of the Narodnik idea. There is a tremendous potential in contemporary U. S. "Narodnicism," and, by mentioning the pre-revolutionary Russian analogy, I mean nothing critical. Narodniks are this column's natural allies.

But there is another way in which the modern U. S. is coming to resemble pre-revolutionary Russia that is not so good. This is in the galloping spread of contemporary nihilism. In pre-revolutionary Russia the nihilist movement was far more important than Marxism, which was an intellectual importation from western Europe. The Russian nihilists had no particularly constructive vision of society; their big aim was to pull the Romanoff state down.

The Russian nihilists were likely to be men of drastic action willing even to shoot at a czar. Fortunately, the new American nihilists (unless Lee Harvey Oswald can be called one of them) have not yet gone in for killing. Their destructiveness has been aimed at the rules and regulations of the University of California at Berkeley, or at the efforts of Navy and CIA recruiters to make contact with the young on the college campuses, or at General Hersey's efforts to enforce the Draft, or at military trains carrying men and supplies to dockside in the San Francisco Bay area.

This form of nihilism distains the legislative process. And it perplexes the old-time Red hunters who used to worry about Gus Hall's official Communist Party. It is a "felt" movement, not a reasoned movement, and, since it springs from the grassroots, it is hard for such protective organizations as the F. E. I. to document it and classify it. It doesn't grow from a conspiracy, it is a contagion.

It was put on to the nihilist parallel between pre-revolutionary Russia and the modern United States by a young man from New Orleans named Edward Scannell Butler, the executive vice president of something called the Information Council of the Americas, which has specialized in the production of radio sequences such as the anti-Castro news documentary called "Hitler in Havana." When Ed Butler got out of the armed services, he had an ambition to fight the spread of Communism. He began his career by doing such things as interviewing Lee Harvey Oswald when the latter was secretary of the New Orleans chapter of the Fair Play for Cuba Committee. Though Oswald was then a Marxist, and had studied and worked in Russia, he was obviously not an "organizational" type. It wasn't long before Butler had his eyes opened to the curious fact that youthful rebellion, in the United States, wasn't Communist or even Marxist in its motivation. It was something not defined and without a constructive vision — i.e., it was nihilism.

Coming from the Romney talk about the 4,000 young U. S. "Narodniks" who want to help the deficient students in Michigan grade schools, and running into Mr. Butler (who talked about nihilists), the full comparison between pre-revolutionary Russia and contemporary America struck me. Analogies admittedly may prove nothing, but maybe they can serve to clarify contemporary trends. At the very least they serve to point up the fact that Marx's "Das Kapital" has very little to do with inspiring revolt among our young.

I believe that there should be legislation to make ear piercing a minor surgical operation for which parental consent is necessary.

How can the annoying post-nasal drip be relieved?

Postnasal drip and catarrh are two vague terms which are used indiscriminately to describe some kind of sensation in the back of the nose. Usually, if the underlying cause is found the postnasal drip can be relieved. A chronic sinus infection or allergy may be the responsible reason.

Nasal douches are often beneficial. They should not, however, be used without the specific suggestion of the doctor.

These should especially be avoided during the time of a cold in the nose because of the possibility of spreading the infection to the ears.

A simple solution made by adding a teaspoonful of salt to a pint of warm water can cut down on the thick postnasal discharge. This solution may be used as a nasal spray a few times a day. Again, it should be used only on the doctor's orders.

Can an overactive thyroid gland affect the heart? The thyroid hormone manufactured in excess by the thyroid gland can make the heart palpitate and beat at a very rapid rate. If this added pressure on the heart were to continue uncontrolled there is a possibility that some damage to the heart can result.

There are now many drugs and radioactive substances which can keep the thyroid gland within the normal range of activity and thus prevent the possibility of heart damage.

AN ARTIST whose paintings are attracting more and more attention these days specializes in canvases of wild storms at sea, oncoming hurricanes, and the like. Faithful to a deathbed promise, his sons placed on his breast, before closing the casket, a one-dozen box of Grade AA-large. Do You Remember When?

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Memory is the river of life.

It keeps open the channel between the past and the present and links them together. The more memories one has, the mightier is that river that finally winds us all to the sea.

Your own memory stream is pretty broad if you can look back and remember when—

Monday was laundry day in the basement, but no one had heard of a detergent. The magic ingredient was old-fashioned yellow soap.

The nearest thing to perpetual motion was a mother with a houseful of kids.

The favorite candy of children was a penny "jawbreaker."

A juvenile delinquent was a small boy who tried to fudge his knuckles across the circle while playing marbles for keeps.

Every little girl who could sing or dance hoped to grow up to be another Deana Durbin or Shirley Temple.

One of the hottest sports arguments was whether Jack Dempsey could have whipped John L. Sullivan in his prime.

Men would have noted at the idea that husbands and wives would ever have their names printed on the same checkbook.

A modern hotel was one that could brag it had a bath for every other room.

A man wasn't really a tycoon until he had a private railway car of his own.

If you still ate peas with a knife, everyone else at the table knew instantly you were a country boy and hadn't yet learned city ways.

Women never planned much else on the day they washed their hair, since it took all afternoon to dry, even with the help of a hot sun.

Parents hated the thought of their daughters working in offices, because it was well-known that such jobs placed them in great moral peril.

Airplane pilots wouldn't think of going up without their helmet and goggles.

Everybody looked forward all week to the fun he'd have on Saturday night. You couldn't have much fun on Friday night, because you didn't get paid until the following day.

Many folks were so afraid of banks they hid their money at home — and the first places a sneak thief looked for it were under the mattresses and under the rugs.

It was taken as a fact of life by every young bride that sooner or later during her marriage she'd have to fight bedbugs. But she hoped that when it happened she could at least keep it a secret from her neighbors.

A teen-age girl looked forward hopefully for getting parental permission to attend her first dance when she was 16. Now a girl thinks she's an old maid if she hasn't been to a dance by the time she's 12.

A henpecked husband was one who appeared in public helping his wife carry home the week-end groceries.

The filling station attendant had to pump the gas for the family auto by hand.

The federal government spent less in a year than it now does in a month.

The Business World

By John Cuniff

NEW YORK (AP) — Overshadowed in the dispute about the possible publication of "The Death of a President" are some of the biggest dollar signs in publishing history.

William Manchester, the author, would become a wealthy man under his contract with Look magazine, and his agent would receive one of the biggest commissions on record.

The John F. Kennedy Library would benefit by hundreds of thousands of dollars. Look, which offered $665,000 for serial rights, would have a circulation spurt. Dell Books, which reportedly hopes to obtain reprint rights for a million dollars, could hope for a sale in the millions of copies.

This book, nevertheless, is not so much an exception as the continuation of a trend. Publishing, which still retains remnants of the rolloft desk and barebulb atmosphere, is expanding rapidly today.

As the Authors Guild will attest, many of its members have very meager incomes. The Guild estimates only a few hundred authors make a living solely from books. But of these, about a score have become wealthy in the past few years.

Profits of some publishers have risen sharply. Their shares have been in demand on stock exchanges. And they have been eagerly sought as merger candidates.

The American public is literate not only in the basic sense of knowing how to read and write, but it is becoming more avid in its demands. In response, publishing receipts last year rose 10 per cent to more than $2 billion. Competition to publish quality works also stiffened. The office of Manchester's agent, for example, said the serial rights for his work brought a higher bid than anyone expected.

Manchester reportedly intends to give the Kennedy Library most of the hard-cover book profits beyond expenses. He was advanced $40,000 pre-eminently to cover expenses and other cash needs while working on the book.

Under a popular form of contract, an author receives 10 per cent of the retail price for the first 5,000 copies sold, 12.5 per cent for the next 5,000 and 15 per cent for all copies beyond 10,000.

On the sale of 50,000 copies of a $5 book — which would bring it close to the best-seller lists — an author might receive $35,625. After that, the author and his agent may have receipts for British and foreign markets, if such markets exist for the work.

An author has other rights also. The first serial rights give him the opportunity for magazine or newspaper presentation of part of the book in advance of publication.

Manchester's income will come primarily from the first serial rights, sold to Look for $665,000. Under a standard contract, 10 per cent of this goes to his agent, a figure confirmed by the agent's office.

In most contracts provision is also made for income from performance rights — television, motion pictures, plays. These rights generally remain with the author.

What is the safest way to pierce the ear-lobes?

We in the practice of medicine are always amazed by the crude ways that the ears have been pierced without any complicating infection. As an ear doctor I am even more amazed by the frequency by which ears become infected even with sterile precautions.

Many mothers pierce the ears of children by heating a sewing needle and then penetrating the ear-lobe in infancy. This I do not recommend.

Some jewelers who sell pierced earrings throw in this "minor surgery" as part of the package deal. Frankly, I do not understand why this should not be classed as surgery and limited only to those who know about sterile precautions.

A new instrument was recently devised by Dr. Simon Coren of Attleboro, Mass. It is an automatic device which painlessly drives a sterile pin through the ear-lobe and leaves a gold-plated ring to keep the hole open.

Is More Involved?

Something has been happening to the residential construction industry in the United States for many months, but that something — in the form of less available and more costly mortgage money — is reaching farther down into the roots of home ownership with each passing month.

By now, many persons accustomed to years of buying on increasingly easy credit have discovered there has been a change in the bottomless credit pit. Somebody put a floor in it, and that floor is rising. Money is loaned these days on shorter terms at higher interest rates to better credit risks.

Although inflation and the tighter money policies of the administration have affected all types of consumer loans, it is the home building industry which has suffered some of the most far-reaching consequences.

For example, the Home Loan Bank Board has issued a survey comparing mortgages being issued today to those of a year ago. The comparisons point to what has happened. For mortgages on existing homes, the average interest rate in October was 6.49 per cent, up from 5.87 per cent a year ago.

New home mortgages in October cost, on an average, 6.32 per cent interest, compared to 5.75 per cent the same month in 1965. In addition, the average term of mortgages dropped from 24.8 years last year to 23.6 years in 1966. And the average loan was for 71 per cent of the purchase price as compared to 73.8 per cent last year.

Housing starts in October were exceptionally poor at an annual rate of $48,000. Last year more than 1.5 million residential homes were started. Even more revealing is the fact new housing starts in October were only slightly higher than the 657,000 homes which are now being torn down annually because of urban renewal, fires or some other reason.

These are the statistics on what is happening in the home construction industry. What is needed now to tell the full story are the reasons. Are tight money and higher interest rates the only reasons, or do rising property taxes, higher construction costs and a generally deteriorating responsibility on the part of both state and federal governments to protect private property rights enter into this?

Before the construction industry can hope to recover completely from the doldrums it has sunk into, it will have to answer the question why as thoroughly as it now knows what has happened.

Nihilist Parallel

By John Chamberlain

In pre-revolutionary Russia, there was something called the Narodnik movement. The Narodniks were young people, sons and daughters of the intelligentsia with an occasional scion of a noble house interspersed, who believed in going to "the people" to carry out good works. It was a promising movement, but World War I cut it short, and with the collapse of the Russian armies and the subsequent failure of the Kerensky government, it never had a chance of revival. The Russian muzhiks, the peasants, were left to the tender mercies of Lenin's Bolsheviks, who used them to forward the Communist takeover and then, in the man-made famine of the Thirties, deprived them not only of their land but their lives.

To anyone who has a taste for analogies, it must seem that the Narodnik movement has been reborn in the United States. This was brought home to me the other day when Governor George Romney, speaking at a National Association of Manufacturers luncheon in New York, gave his businessmen audience a rather detailed briefing on the 4,000 Michigan college students who had volunteered to do remedial work in slum area grammar schools throughout their state. Such organizations as Operations Crossroads Africa, a voluntary predecessor of the government-operated Peace Corps, represent an extension of the Narodnik idea. There is a tremendous potential in contemporary U. S. "Narodnicism," and, by mentioning the pre-revolutionary Russian analogy, I mean nothing critical. Narodniks are this column's natural allies.

But there is another way in which the modern U. S. is coming to resemble pre-revolutionary Russia that is not so good. This is in the galloping spread of contemporary nihilism. In pre-revolutionary Russia the nihilist movement was far more important than Marxism, which was an intellectual importation from western Europe. The Russian nihilists had no particularly constructive vision of society; their big aim was to pull the Romanoff state down.

The Russian nihilists were likely to be men of drastic action willing even to shoot at a czar. Fortunately, the new American nihilists (unless Lee Harvey Oswald can be called one of them) have not yet gone in for killing. Their destructiveness has been aimed at the rules and regulations of the University of California at Berkeley, or at the efforts of Navy and CIA recruiters to make contact with the young on the college campuses, or at General Hersey's efforts to enforce the Draft, or at military trains carrying men and supplies to do-kside in the San Francisco Bay area.

This form of nihilism distains the legislative process. And it perplexes the old-time Red hunters who used to worry about Gus Hall's official Communist Party. It is a "felt" movement, not a reasoned movement, and, since it springs from the grassroots, it is hard for such protective organizations as the F. E. I. to document it and classify it. It doesn't grow from a conspiracy, it is a contagion.

It was put on to the nihilist parallel between pre-revolutionary Russia and the modern United States by a young man from New Orleans named Edward Scannell Butler, the executive vice president of Something called the Information Council of the Americas, which has specialized in the production of radio sequences such as the anti-Castro news documentary called "Hitler in Havana." When Ed Butler got out of the armed services, he had an ambition to fight the spread of Communism. He began his career by doing such things as interviewing Lee Harvey Oswald when the latter was secretary of the New Orleans chapter of the Fair Play for Cuba Committee. Though Oswald was then a Marxist, and had studied and worked in Russia, he was obviously not an "organizational" type. It wasn't long before Butler had his eyes opened to the curious fact that youthful rebellion, in the United States, wasn't Communist or even Marxist in its motivation. It was something not defined and without a constructive vision — i.e., it was nihilism.

Coming from the Romney talk about the 4,000 young U.S. "Narodniks" who want to help the deficient students in Michigan grade schools, and running into Mr. Butler (who talked about nihilists), the full comparison between pre-revolutionary Russia and contemporary America struck me. Analogies admittedly may prove nothing, but maybe they can serve to clarify contemporary trends. At the very least they serve to point up the fact that Marx's "Des Kapital" has very little to do with inspiring revolt among our young.

AN ARTIST whose paintings are attracting more and more attention these days specializes in canvases of wild storms at sea, oncoming hurricanes, and the like. A young female student came to his one-man show in Cleveland recently, recognized him from the newspaper pictures, and came over to tell him, "I think you're wonderful—but what a shame you've had such rotten luck with the weather!"

Joseph Love, of Dallas, writes about a well-known egg producer, who breathed his last some time ago. Faithful to a deathbed promise, his sons placed on his breast, before closing the casket, a one-dozen box of Grade AA-large. Remarked a lifelong friend at the funeral, "That's old John for you: always wanting egg in his bier."

Advice to wives by matrimonial expert Francis Duffy: the next time your husband complains about a necktie you've picked out for him, give him a sock!

Visitor: "What happened to the burglars who broke into your house last night?" Home-owner: "My wife's relatives hollered 'WE were here first' and chased them out."

A New Yorker scout was within earshot when a customer asked the proprietress of a seashore resort news kiosk, "Do you have any surfing magazines?" She nodded cheerfully and produced a copy of The Atlantic Monthly.

Do You Remember When?

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Memory is the river of life.

It keeps open the chanel between the past and the present and links them together. The more memories one has, the mightier is that river that finally winds us all to the sea.

Your own memory stream is pretty broad if you can look back and remember when—

Monday was laundry day in the basement, but no one had heard of a detergent. The magic ingredient was old-fashioned yellow soap.

The nearest thing to perpetual motion was a mother with a houseful of kids.

The favorite candy of children was a penny "jawbreaker."

A juvenile delinquent was a small boy who tried to fudge his knuckles across the circle while playing marbles for keeps.

Every little girl who could sing or dance hoped to grow up to be another Deana Durbin or Shirley Temple.

One of the hottest sports arguments was whether Jack Dempsey could have whipped John L. Sullivan in his prime.

Men would have noted at the idea that husbands and wives would ever have their names printed on the same checkbook.

A modern hotel was one that could brag it had a bath for every other room.

A man wasn't really a tycoon until he had a private railway car of his own.

If you still ate peas with a knife, everyone else at the table knew instantly you were a country boy and hadn't yet learned city ways.

Women never planned much else on the day they washed their hair, since it took all afternoon to dry, even with the help of a hot sun.

Parents hated the thought of their daughters working in offices, because it was well-known that such jobs placed them in great moral peril.

Airplane pilots wouldn't think of going up without their helmet and goggles.

Everybody looked forward all week to the fun he'd have on Saturday night. You couldn't have much fun on Friday night, because you didn't get paid until the following day.

Many folks were so afraid of banks they hid their money at home — and the first places a sneak thief looked for it were under the mattresses and under the rugs.

MRS. PAUL LESLIE SPEAKMAN

Miss Jean Ruth Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd N. Moore Sr., Lancaster and Mr. Paul Leslie Speakman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Speakman of Route 4, exchanged wedding vows the evening of Nov. 25 at 7:30 in the Calvary Lutheran Church.

The Rev. Paul O. Weimer performed the service before an altar decorated with white carnations and lighted candelabra.

Pre-nuptial music was presented by Miss Nellie Metzger. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of silk peau de soie with pearl trimmed chantilly lace. The full detachable train fell from a tailored bow.

A lace and peau pill box held her waterfall veil of silk illusion. She carried a white orchid and stephanotis atop her white Bible. A single strand of pearls was a gift from the bridegroom.

Miss Sue Ellen Moore was her sister's maid of honor and Miss Linda Mace was bridesmaid. Their gowns were of Fiesta and pastel pink crepe. A two-toned velvet bow centered with a satin flower and small pouff veil matched the colors of the gowns. Their round bouquets were of pink and white carnations.

Mr. Paul Spung served as best man. Ushers were Floyd Moore Jr. and Charles Carpenter.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Moore selected a navy blue knit suit and Mrs. Speakman, mother of the bridegroom, wore a green knit with beige accents. Their corsages were of white carnations.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Walker, Laurelville.

A reception was held in the church social rooms with Mrs. Eddie Chaney, sister of the bride, in charge of the guest book. Acting hostesses were Miss Vicki Woodgeard, Mrs. Dennis Valentine, Mrs. Larry Fast and Mrs. Floyd Gilliam.

Holiday Gifts Made Pretty

By ELEANOR ROSS

It's time to think of personal gifts — the gifts you make yourself with hands and heart. One little holiday gift that is always received with pleasure — or so we've found — is a pomander ball. Hung in a closet or placed in a bureau drawer, the pomander emits a pleasing aroma and is a pleasantly aromatic motif on a delightful little job.

First of all, assemble oranges, or lemons, or limes. Whatever fruit you select, wash the skins thoroughly and dry well. Then insert whole cloves in the skins until the entire surface is studded and completely covered. Use a skewer or bobby pin if you find skins difficult to pierce. Work on the round, for if cloves are inserted in a straight line the skins tend to crack.

Next, mix equal part of ground cinnamon andorris root — the latter may be purchased from the drug store. Have some little bags ready and put a heaping teaspoon of the mixture in each bag together with a clove-studded orange, lemon or lime. Shake bag well to coat citrus fruit with mixture.

Wrap loosely or place in a foil-covered tray or basket. Store in a dry place until fruit shrinks and hardens — usually 3 to 4 weeks. Wrap each pomander ball in a veil of colorful net and tie with a colored ribbon. A set of three — orange, lemon, lime — each done in a different color, makes a pretty little something that is small in cost, rich in affection, and a very nice holiday remembrance.

There are various methods of removing the outer shell and inner brown covering from chestnuts. Some cooks like to slit each nut, then plunge into very hot oil for a few seconds. After cooling, the shells and covering are removed and the nuts cooked until tender in salted water.

Walt Disney Not Always Big Success We Remember

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — At the time of his death last Thursday, Walt Disney's entertainment empire was so widespread and prosperous that it seemed impossible he had known times when his studio had faced extinction.

Yet until the last decade of his life, Disney was scorned by many financial minds who considered him a poor risk, a visionary who would bring his company to the edge of insolvency to accomplish dreams.

For the first 30 years of his film enterprises, the pattern was the same: Walt got the ideas and his brother Roy got the money. But more than once the ideas outdistanced the money.

It started as early as 1923. Walt had come to Hollywood with plans of breaking into the movies. He originally wanted to be a director, but no studio wanted to hire a 22-year-old Kansas City boy with no experience. So he decided to do the thing he knew: make cartoons.

"Where can we get the money?" he asked Roy. The older brother found a source: an uncle who made a reluctant loan of $500. They were in business.

Later when Walt had trouble interesting major studios in his new character, Mickey Mouse, he thought of a way to put it across: with sound. Talkies were coming in, but nobody had put sound to cartoons and experimenting would cost money.

Roy found the cash and Walt recorded the sound track in New York. Mickey Mouse became a star.

The Disney resources were again pushed to the limit with the first all-cartoon feature, "Snow White." Walt had hoped to make the film for a million dollars, but the total came to $1.7 million because of his search for perfection. The treasury was depleted for an unproved project; nobody knew if audiences would sit still for a full-length feature with cartoon characters.

The euphoria that followed the success of "Snow White" sent Walt on a spending spree: "Bambi" cost $1.7 million, "Fantasia" $2.2 million, "Pinocchio" $2.6 million. Then Roy called a halt.

"There isn't any more money, Walt," he told his brother. "Those new features wiped out all the profits that 'Snow White' made, and our foreign market is knocked out by the war. We've got to tighten our belts."

The Disney studio limped through the war, making training films and propaganda movies. Walt had a rough time gearing the studio for the peacetime market. He experimented with films that were a musical vaudeville and with movies that combined animation with live action. None seemed to click.

Walt moved boldly into non-cartoon features and scored a hit with his most expensive film, "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea." The cartoons were succeeding, notably "Cinderella" and "Lady and the Tramp", and so were the nature films such as "The Living Desert."

The Disney fortunes were climbing, but Walt had another dream: an amusement park full of fun and imagination. But he didn't know how to finance it.

"I've got it," he decided one wakeful night. "The networks have been wanting me to go into television. I'll give them a show — if they'll help me build the park."

ABC agreed to help finance Disneyland, but Walt still didn't have enough to finish the park. He borrowed on his life insurance for added money.

"Disney's folly," as the scoffers called it, opened its gates July 17, 1955, and proved one of the great successes of entertain-

Campaigners for the legislation have long contended that the present law opens homosexuals to blackmail.

NEW YORK (AP) — American wheat saved the lives of perhaps 70 million Indians in the past year of famine who would have died of starvation. But what if the rains fail to come again this year? And how many millions will starve in the years ahead if the fertility of the people continue to outpace the fertility of their land?

These were the questions raised, but impossible to answer, in Tuesday night's explicit, graphic "CBS Reports" hour built around our shipments of eight million tons of grain during the emergency.

There was dramatic impact in the contrast between the mechanized, efficient agriculture of the United States and the primitive, unproductive farming of the peoples of India.

Narrator Winston Burdette made it plain the Indian government is losing the war against hunger. Rats eat as much grain as the United States sent the sub-continent. The country is overrun with ownerless sacred cows who further deplete a food supply that is not big enough even when the rains arrive on schedule. The population, now past 500 million, increases at a rate of a million a month.

Television is a superb medium in which to present such a subject. Americans may harp about drought and sympathize with the sufferers, but we rarely have a chance to see the face of famine.

But we did Tuesday night. It was hardly a happy program, but it was curiously appropriate at this particular time of the year.

Word comes from London that some British veterans are irked by the television series, "Rat Patrol," which shows Americans helping to win the World War II battles of El Alamein. The filmed series, on ABC here, has been acquired by the British Broadcasting Company.

Our British cousins probably would be amazed at some of the other things the Yanks are alleged to have done. Our "12 O'Clock High" often suggests that American fliers pretty much took care of the war in the air. And "Combat" indicates that our boys handled most of the action on the Western Front.

After all, they are entertainment shows made for American audiences, not documentaries. Besides, all those old English war movies on the late show give the British credit for all the military triumphs.

UCHINOURA, Japan (AP) — Japanese scientists today failed for the second time to orbit an artificial satellite, a feat only three nations have accomplished.

The first attempt was made on Sept. 26. Only the United States, the Soviet Union and France have orbited satellites.

Internal Feuding Creating Eastern Nigeria Problems

ENUGU, Nigeria (AP) — For a foreigner, arriving in the eastern region from another part of Nigeria is like entering another country. At Enugu's airport, police go through luggage, read every letter or document they find, frisk travelers and occasionally ask to see passports.

Even Nigerians do not escape the police search. At a crossing point from western Nigeria, police and soldiers search Nigerians and confiscate any food they may be carrying; exports of foodstuffs from the eastern region are banned.

All this is part of a protective wall the easterners have thrown up around the region as the result of a feud that has been going on for 300 years. It reinforces the regional government's line that it can break with the rest of Nigeria.

Industrious Ibo tribesmen dominate the eastern region, one of four virtually autonomous regions that make up the Federation of Nigeria.

Under British rule, which lasted nearly 100 years until 1960, Ibos emigrated to other parts of Nigeria, establishing themselves in business and commerce. Mostly they went to the northern region.

In recent months, resentful northerners have brought into the open charges that the Ibos want to dominate the north. As a result, thousands of Ibos fell victims to massacres while thousands more fled eastward to ancestral Ibo tribal homes.

This tremendous influx of refugees—eastern officials say there are a million of them—has taxed the resources of the land-cramped east. But it also has given the east a bargaining tool to get what it wants in current efforts to draw up a new constitution for the Nigerian federation. It wants a loose federation of the four regions, permitting the Ibos to rule their own area without fear of domination from other groups.

An eastern secession could hurt Nigeria. Eastern officials say 42 per cent of the federal government's revenue, including 75 per cent of the $81 million of oil revenues, is generated in the east.

But eastern investment in the rest of Nigeria is vast and easterners stand to lose it if they pull out.

New Sheriff In Alabama Is Negro

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (AP) — Lucius D. Amerson takes office Jan. 16 as sheriff of Macon County, which wouldn't be much new except that Amerson is a Negro. In fact, he's the first Negro elected sheriff in the South since Reconstruction days.

"I am going to make sure," said Amerson, "that no one in Macon County will receive unfair or brutality-type treatment."

"There will be no partiality shown toward Negroes or whites," the 33-year-old Army veteran said in an interview in a rented office just off the campus of famed Tuskegee Institute.

Amerson will be chief law enforcement officer in a county which is 83 per cent Negro. He won his four year term by beating two whites, including the incumbent sheriff, in May primaries and the November general election. The sheriff in Macon County, who normally has four or five uniformed deputies, is paid by a fee system which can net from $8,000 a year up.

The husky, neatly dressed former postal employee said "the most significant thing" about his election is that "more people are beginning to take an interest in those who govern them. I think the time has come when the white citizens of Alabama and other Southern states must realize Negroes can perform jobs in higher places with proficiency and dignity, and that they will do their jobs for the best interest of all the people."

Amerson, whose wife works at the John A. Andrew Hospital on the Tuskegee Institute campus, says he decided to run for sheriff because "I feel that I can make the best contribution to the community in this office. I am more familiar with certain aspects of law enforcement than I am with other phases of government."

As an airborne infantryman in the Army, he twice attended schools on civil and criminal investigation. Since his nomination in the Democratic primary last May, he has studied at a law enforcement officers' seminar at Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio.

Amerson has promised that his office and the county jail "will be integrated in all aspects," but he is having problems finding white men who are willing to work as deputies.

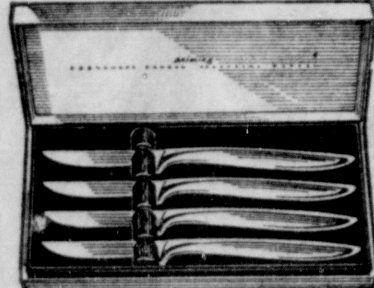

"A number of white men have contacted me, but they all want to be the chief deputy," he recalled. He said he hasn't decided who will get that job.

After he takes office, Amerson says he plans to set up "temporary" substations in every precinct in the county to hear "complaints and grievances from people who can't get to Tuskegee," the county seat.

Meanwhile, he says, he has found no evidence of resentment among the white community. "People are friendly," he said, "and I haven't had the first threat or crank phone call."

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — More and more the attention of the country is being focused on the strange new world of President Johnson, a world of silence and withdrawal, to see what emerges from it in 1967.

He can't go on like this if he hopes to run for the presidency again in 1968 although up to this time he hasn't said he will.

Today a group of governors confer with him at his Texas ranch. But anyone who knows him can be sure the criticism he got from Democratic governors last week has stung him bitterly.

Union Continues Fight To Keep Hoffa from Jail

WASHINGTON (AP)—Trucking employers say they will not attempt to influence the makeup of the Teamsters Union negotiating committee — meaning they won't try to keep union President James R. Hoffa out of prison during negotiations early next year on a nationwide contract.

Hoffa and some union officials claim that Hoffa is indispensable to the negotiations. But the Trucking Employers, Inc., in effect said Tuesday they won't try to delay Hoffa's going to prison for a conviction and eight-year sentence on a charge of jury tampering, which the Supreme Court upheld last week.

Hoffa's attorney Joseph A. Fanelli, tried Tuesday to at least delay his client's trip behind bars. He sought a 30-day extension until Feb. 4 of the time limit for asking the Supreme Court to reconsider its decision.

The court presumably would take some time beyond that to rule on the request for reconsideration—time during which Hoffa could remain free on bail.

Negotiations on the national master contract are expected to begin Jan. 17 in Washington. The present contract expires March 31.

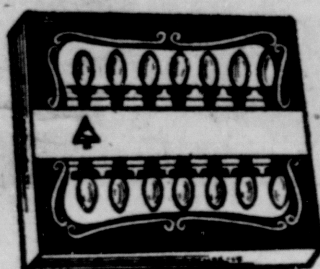

The trucking employers group said to represent about 1,100 employers with nearly 450,000 over-the-road drivers, thrust aside the reported stand of some employers that Hoffa's presence would be needed at negotiations.

Teamsters in parts of three states walked out briefly in sympathy with Hoffa Tuesday, but he ordered them back to work "as soon as he found out about it," said a Teamsters spokesman in Washington.

The brief strike was at scattered locations in western Pennsylvania, northern West Virginia and western Maryland. Detroit long distance drivers walked out for a day last week in sympathy with Hoffa.

Some of them blamed his domestic policies and political operations for the gains the Republicans made in the November elections.

That they should have made such an attack on him, probably unprecedented, shows the depth of dissatisfaction within the Democratic party with his leadership, or rather lack of it.

They were thinking, of course, of the meager campaigning he did for his party in the last election, an extraordinary neglect for a man who is so totally political as Johnson.

One shrewd political observer tried to explain that performance to this writer: Johnson is unfamiliar with Northern politics and politicians, was therefore unsure of himself, and thought it better to stay out.

This doesn't add up. His job in the campaigns wasn't the nuts and bolts task of putting political machines together. His job simply was to help candidates by appearing in their areas and speaking for them.

But this he backed away from and his reason has never been explained by him.

But his whole performance in recent months has almost had an air of mystery about it. He has wrapped himself in silence while criticism of him increases and his popularity goes down.

Just try to remember when you heard him make one full speech explaining to the American people.

Star of Bethlehem Planetary Event?

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) —The Star of Bethlehem which plays a prominent part in the Bible story of the birth of Christ may have been the bright glow from Jupiter passing close to Saturn, says a Michigan State University astronomer.

Von Del Chamberlain says a rare conjunction of the two planets which would have given off an unusually bright glow occurred in 6 B.C., the year he said is considered to be the actual date of Christ's birth.

can people this country's position in Vietnam: the problems, the progress, the reasons for being there. Why the reluctance to do even this

Yet, his critics in this past year have talked so much, and at such length, now at year's end they seem worn out. Yet the war in Vietnam is one of the main sources of complaint against Johnson.

He may feel that he is misunderstood, that his ideas are being rejected or not listened to, but any failures of this kind may be more of his own doing than of any one else.

He has a habit of jumbling, of throwing a whole raft of subjects into one speech so that the net effect is a flur, instead of devoting one whole speech to one subject so that the point and effect he wishes to make are inescapable.

But when all these things are added up, what do they come to Johnson is extremely on the defensive, extremely bothered by criticism. He was riding high in his early days when he was getting his programs through Congress and had the usual public goodwill that goes to a new president.

But when this goodwill subsided and the going got rougher, particularly in fields he was not familiar with, as in foreign affairs, he seems to have become less and less vigorous, more and more withdrawn, increasingly sensitive, more reluctant to talk or fight back. This is strange, indeed.

Santa and the Giant Fighter

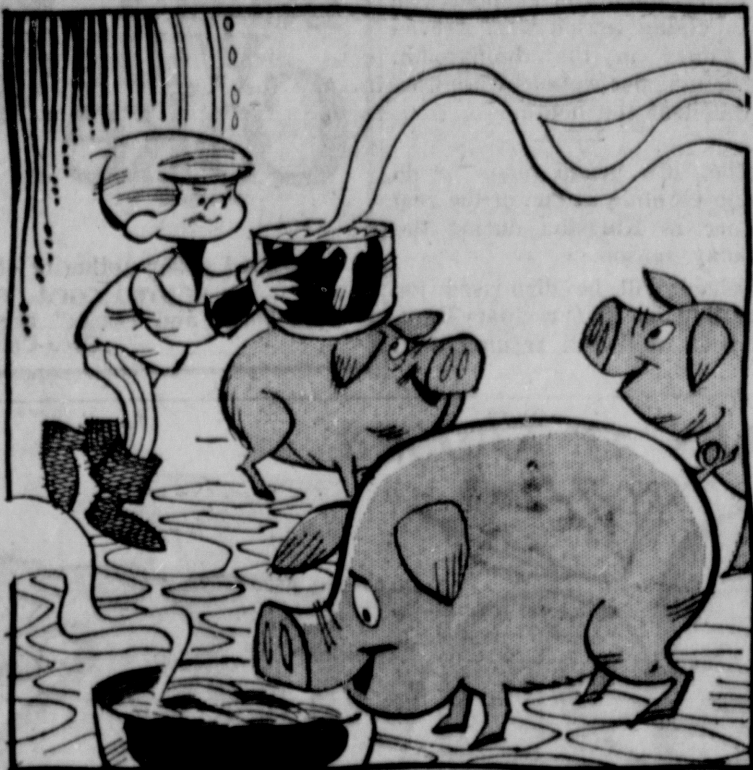

By Lucrece Beale

Synopsis: Billy gets into the castle by hiding in Goko's boot, when the giant, pleased with his polished boots, relents and orders super for the giants. Billy sneaks after him into the kitchen.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN GREEN PEA SOUP

It was super time and the giants guarding the castle were faint from lack of food. "To bash in our heads is all right," they muttered. "But to starve us is quite another thing."

Then word came that Goko had relented and they were to have food after all. The giants were to remain at their posts and Goko would send them each a bowl of green pea soup. A bowl of soup — even green pea soup — is to a giant what a peanut is to an elephant. Still it was better than nothing and the giants dared not complain.

While the soup cooked, Goko sat in the kitchen and ate his usual meal. He had a barrel of oysters, a bushel of potatoes and half a roast of hippopotamus. He topped it off with a small plum pudding — about the size of a railroad caboose.

All the time Goko was eating Billy was hiding behind the kitchen stove. It had been easy enough to slip into his hiding place. Goko's face was hidden behind the roast hippopotamus and the giant who was cooking the soup was so envious of Goko's succulent dinner he kept his eyes screwed shut so he couldn't see it.

Billy waited his chance. When the soup was nearly done he took out the bottle of Ha-Ha the Ghost's tears and dumped it in with the bubbling peas.

The pot of soup hissed and sizzled and sputtered and fished like a truckload of fireworks gone off at one time. The cook opened his eyes and staggered back in alarm. Goko leaped up from the plum pudding he had just finished and roared.

"Dunce! Can't you see? It's done!"

"Y-yes, yes," stammered the giant. He ducked his head to avoid a green pea that shot out from the pot.

"Then serve it to the clods!" barked Goko and he stalked away to his den.

The trembling cook hastily dashed the gurgling, frothing soup into bowls—including one for himself—and dashed away to feed the giants. Every giant downed his bowl in one big gulp. They declared it the best soup ever served at the castle. Five minutes later they had turned into pigs.

Billy came out from behind the stove and led the grunting animals into the kitchen. He dragged all the food out of the refrigerator and set it on the floor. Then he left them happy as well-fed pigs always are.

Billy tiptoed through the castle until he came to the den where Goko sat before the fire. Billy peeped through the half-closed door.

Every few minutes the giant heaved himself out of his chair and went to look out the window. He was watching for the moon to rise.

"No one could hurt me," he muttered to himself. "What does it matter if the moon does shine? It's all nonsense."

All the same he couldn't sit still. He had to keep checking on the moon. When he got up for the 18th time to look out the window Billy ran in and laid the Harp Witch's necklace on the giant's chair. Then Billy ducked behind the chair.

Goko came back from the window. He saw the Rosana Ruby gleaming in his chair. He picked it up and held it to the light.

He could not imagine where it had come from but he grunted "Finders, keepers! It is mine!"

He started to fasten the necklace around his neck. Billy waited, holding his breath.

"It will tighten around his throat as the Harp Witch said," he thought. "Goko will die and Santa and all of Fairyland will be saved!"

Court Avoids Ruling on Sunbathing

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Mississippi Supreme Court has tossed out the conviction of a woman who practiced nudism in the seclusion of her woodland home.

Without ruling on the merits of sunbathing, the high court said Monday that Mrs. Roy C. Pendergrass had tried to hide rather than indecently expose herself from a part-time preacher who came uninvited into her retreat.

She had been convicted of indecent public exposure in George County, fined $50 and given a 20-day suspended sentence.

The charges stemmed from the visit by the Rev. Dennis McDonald, a shipfitter who had been an ordained minister about one year. He served the Salem Missionary Baptist church near the Pendergrass property.

The evidence showed that McDonald had to pass "No Trespassing" signs, another reading "Blow Your Horn to Enter" and raise the latch on a gate barrier.

The minister stayed nearly 45 minutes trying to persuade the family to join his church.

Justice Tom Brady, in the court's decision, noted that "the record fails to disclose why the Rev. Mr. McDonald did not immediately turn around and leave."

Too Many Projects

WILLIAMSBURG, Mass. (AP) — That was a fine-looking quilt the Congregational Church women sold at their bazaar. Trouble was, it wasn't theirs.

The blanket had been mailed in as a project for a quilting bee and accidentally got mixed up with the bazaar goods.

Now the church women are trying to find the lucky buyer so they can return the quilt to its rightful owner.

Santa and the Giant Fighter

By Lucrece Beale

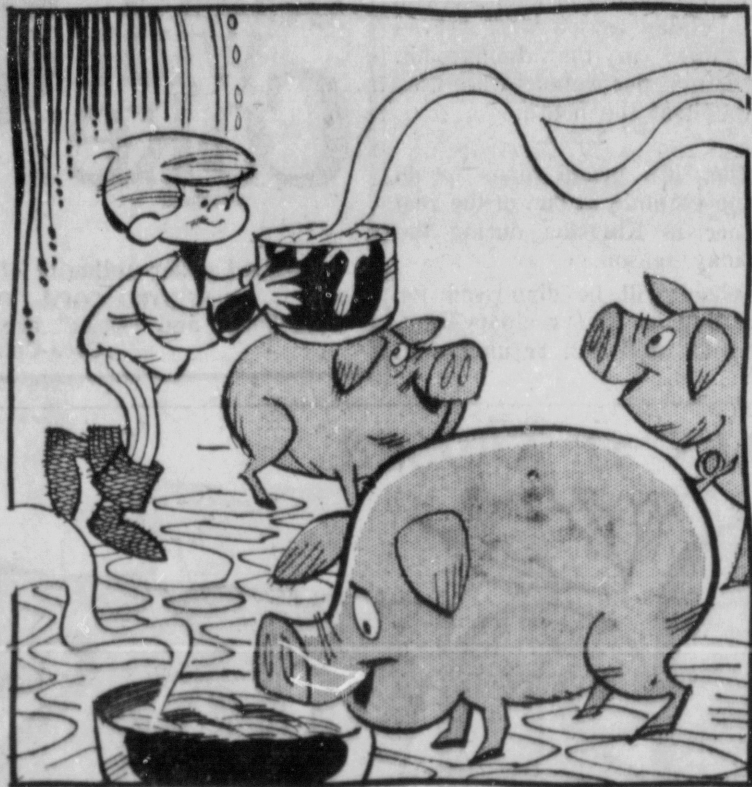

Synopsis: Billy gets into the castle by hiding in Goko's boot, when the giant, pleased with his polished boots, relents and orders supper for the giants. Billy sneaks after him into the kitchen.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN GREEN PEA SOUP

It was super time and the giants guarding the castle were faint from lack of food.

"To bash in our heads is all right," they muttered. "But to starve us is quite another thing."

Then word came that Goko had relented and they were to have food after all. The giants were to remain at their posts and Goko would send them each a bowl of green pea soup. A bowl of soup — even green pea soup — is to a giant what a nett, president, had charge of the business meeting. Mrs. Fred Likens had the devotions.

Mrs. Harry Hill presented the matter of cleaning the church in the Spring. Mrs. Bennett asked Mrs. Wayne Delong to make arrangements for a products party for the March meeting. A silent auction is scheduled for the meeting in January, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Raymond Davis. Mrs. Delong was named to the telephoning committee for the next three months.

A gift of a silver serving dish was presented to Mrs. Hill, the pastor's wife.

A skit "For This Little Time," was given by Mrs. Raymond Davis, Mrs. Howard Fish and Mrs. Eugene Norris.

Sixteen members of the Kingston Past Matrons Club of the Order of Eastern Star were entertained Friday evening by Mrs. Russell Wolfe and Mrs. Leslie Dearth at the home of Mrs. Wolfe. Mrs. W. E. Freshour, president, opened the meeting by reading "A Christmas Prayer."

The meditation was given by Mrs. Elizabeth Bennett. A short business meeting followed, with a discussion on purchase of new window blinds and hot water heater for the chapter room.

A contest consisted of tearing from colored paper an article associated with Christmas and then writing a short jingle about it. Mrs. Carl Hohenstein was the winner.

The exchange packages were distributed with members matching their pin-ons with the one on a package.

Refreshments in keeping with the holiday season were served at tables in the diningroom. Christmas decorations were used throughout the house.

The fifth grade plans to do some caroling at one of the rest homes in Kingston during the holiday season.

School will be dismissed for vacation at the regular time, Dec. 22, and will resume Jan. 3.

Brick Mason Risks Life For Teacher

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Authorities Tuesday credited a brick mason with saving the life of a young teacher involved in a fiery collision that killed five persons.

Officials said Roy G. Burris, 40, Indianapolis, who had been warned not to exert himself because of a recent heart attack, pulled Sharon Roach, 21, Indianapolis, out of reach of a flowing pool of flaming gasoline.

Miss Roach's car, turned into a school parking lot, jackknifed and overturned Monday, police said. The tank section split spewing flaming fuel across a major city artery jammed with morning rush-hour traffic.

Six vehicles were caught in the 40-foot wall of flame. Four of the dead were trapped in two autos.

The truck driver, Orval Huley, 51, Indianapolis, died of burns Monday night about 16 hours after the accident.

Nationwide Trend to Greater Sales Resistance Hasn't Been Evident in Ohio's Christmas Spree

By ROBERT E. MILLER

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohioans are spending more for Christmas this year than ever before regardless of the "tight money" situation and reports goods would be short as a result of the Vietnam war.

Spokesmen for some of the state's leading department stores, variety and discount houses, and merchants' associations say average sales are up 5-7 per cent from last year's record volume.

Shortages of merchandise, with few exceptions, failed to develop.

Most retail spokesmen showed little surprise at the record and said they felt it resulted from the growth of the economy. Others said they saw it as a barometer for another good year in 1967.

"Anytime Christmas sales don't set a record, there's something wrong with business..." said a spokesman in Cincinnati for the huge Federated Department Store chain.

An official of the F&R Lazarus Co., Federated outlet in Columbus, agreed. He said Lazarus' Christmas business is up five per cent and that he expects it to remain up four per cent in the first few months of next year.

Ohioans appear to have gone against a reported nationwide trend showing a resistance to expensive items such as major appliances, color television sets, jewelry, and furs.

Some store people said they noticed a "slight" reluctance to these items but the majority said they were moving extremely well.

The Federated spokesman said that company has seen a run on "quality" merchandise. The same was reported by the Woolco discount chain in Columbus which said it had twice as many layaways this year as last.

Roy Stage, executive director of the Columbus Retail Merchants Association, said member stores told him they have noted "a definite trend toward more expensive items."

In Springfield, two major appliance and television dealers said they have had increases in sale of all items. Springfield jewelers are having their busiest shopping season in several years, they said.

Higbee's Department Store in Cleveland was an exception. It noted "some resistance" to major purchases and attributed it to concern over "tight money" which has slowed capital expenditures.

The only merchandise shortages of any significance were in "metal" items such as firearms. Stores said they are hard to get. The Woolco official in Columbus said "we've been taking orders but at the same time telling customers we don't know when we can make delivery."

There were a few shortages that were not attributed to the Vietnam war. These were in Cincinnati where dealers said demand for cameras and furniture had exceeded production.

What are some of the most popular items with Ohio shoppers?

Some Guys Have It, Others Surely Will

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The University of New Mexico is discontinuing the practice of assigning a seven-digit number to each student for their records.

Instead, the school said, the students' nine-digit Social Security numbers will be used. Students without a Social Security card have been advised to get one before registration next fall.

AMERICAN WOMEN TO VIEW HANOI WAR DAMAGE—Traveling as guests of the Women's Union of North Vietnam to Hanoi to view war damage there, interview captured American pilots and talk with President Ho Chi Minh, four American women pose in Moscow before boarding their plane. They are (from left) Mrs. Diane Bevel, Chicago; Mrs. Grace Newman, New York; Mrs. Patricia Griffiths, Ithaca, N.Y., and Miss Barbara Deming, Cape Cod, Mass. (Cablephoto)

In addition to appliances and expensive merchandise, Lazarus officials listed dressy sweaters, at-home fashions, reclining chairs, fancy coffee mugs, and books on classical art and cooking.

Higbee's in Cleveland listed toys, gift wrap, and discount clothing.

"Toys are fantastic," said Herbert Teitelbaum, manager of a new Zayre Co. store in suburban Columbus. Other stores mentioned record players, watches, cameras, typewriters, and portable radios. One store said it was selling 100 per cent more portable radios than it did last year "and they were very popular then."

Santa Claus seems to be about as popular as ever among the kids but there is a trend toward fewer Santas in Ohio. For the most part, newer discount and variety stores are content to let the older department stores maintain their long traditions of having a Santa. Even they said it was getting more difficult to find neat, dependable men who can get the children's respect.

Teitelbaum said his company had tried having a Santa and found there were "too many problems involved. Sometimes they fail to show up, and then when they do, they're inebriated."

William G. Danneman, manager of the Union Co. clothing chain in Columbus, said his store has no Santa, because there are too many of them already. "Some grown ups like to believe too many told them already. Besides, children and adults see too many of them up and down the street," he said.

The stores that do have a Santa reported the kids are excited as ever to see him and discounted the idea that today's youngsters are too advanced to appreciate him. "There is no indication kids are getting too sophisticated for Santa," said a Cincinnati store official.

Because of the tight labor market in Ohio, the majority of store officials said, they have had problems in getting all types of personnel. Some said they advertised both in the news media and by word of mouth among existing employees. Others took on vacationing college students. At least one said he hired persons not normally qualified because he could find no one else.

There were varying opinions as to the effect of the weather on Christmas buying. It ranged from a contention that unseasonably warm weather failed to put buyers in the Christmas "spirit" to claims that cold, snowing weather made them stay at home.

But overall, it appeared to make little difference. A spokesman for Swallen's discount store in Cincinnati, William Whaley, said "when it snows we lose some business, but then we get it back again."

Stage, the Columbus merchants' spokesman, agreed and added: "It all balances out."

BOOK MATCHES

Q. Are book matches poisonous?
A. The composition of book matches varies somewhat but from information supplied by one match manufacturer it may be assumed that such matches are relatively harmless when ingested. Based on chemical composition, the lethal or killing dose for a 1-year-old child would be the chemicals contained in about 380 such matches (nineteen books of 20 matches each). It is not likely that a child or adult could consume this number of matches without first becoming ill from stomach irritation produced by the paper. Needless to say, however, matches are not harmless in other respects and should be kept out of reach of children.

SOFT TEETH

Q. Is it true that some people have naturally soft teeth?
A. According to dental authorities, the idea that some people have "soft teeth," meaning greater susceptibility to cavity formation, is a misconception. Rapid tooth decay rate is usually due to poor oral hygiene, rich, sugary diet, or improper dental care.

Nationwide Trend to Greater Sales Resistance Hasn't Been Evident in Ohio's Christmas Spree

By ROBERT E. MILLER

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohioans are spending more for Christmas this year than ever before regardless of the "tight money" situation and reports goods would be short as a result of the Vietnam war.

Spokesmen for some of the state's leading department stores, variety and discount houses, and merchants' associations say average sales are up 5-7 per cent from last year's record volume.

Shortages of merchandise, with few exceptions, failed to develop.

Most retail spokesmen showed little surprise at the record and said they felt it resulted from the growth of the economy. Others said they saw it as a barometer for another good year in 1967.

"Anytime Christmas sales don't set a record, there's something wrong with business . . ." said a spokesman in Cincinnati for the huge Federated Department Store chain.

An official of the F&R Lazarus Co., Federated outlet in Columbus, agreed. He said Lazarus' Christmas business is up five per cent and that he expects it to remain up four per cent in the first few months of next year.

Ohioans appear to have gone against a reported nationwide trend showing a resistance to expensive items such as major appliances, color television sets, jewelry, and furs.

Some store people said they noticed a "slight" reluctance to these items but the majority said they were moving extremely well.

The Federated spokesman said that company has seen a run on "quality" merchandise. The same was reported by the Woolco discount chain in Columbus which said it had twice as many layaways this year as last.

Roy Stage, executive director of the Columbus Retail Merchants Association, said member stores told him they have noted "a definite trend toward more expensive items."

In Springfield, two major appliance and television dealers said they have had increases in sale of all items. Springfield jewelers are having their busiest shopping season in several years, they said.

Higbee's Department Store in Cleveland was an exception. It noted "some resistance" to major purchases and attributed it to concern over "tight money" which has slowed capital expenditures.

The only merchandise shortages of any significance were in "metal" items such as firearms. Stores said they are hard to get. The Woolco official in Columbus said "we've been taking orders but at the same time telling customers we don't know when we can make delivery."

There were a few shortages that were not attributed to the Vietnam war. These were in Cincinnati where dealers said demand for cameras and furniture had exceeded production.

What are some of the most popular items with Ohio shoppers?

In addition to appliances and expensive merchandise, Lazarus' officials listed dressy sweaters, at-home fashions, reclining chairs, fancy coffee mugs, and books on classical art and cooking.

Higbee's in Cleveland listed toys, gift wrap, and discount clothing.

"Toys are fantastic," said Herbert Teitelbaum, manager of a new Zayre Co. store in suburban Columbus. Other stores mentioned record players, watches, cameras, typewriters, and portable radios. One store said it was selling 100 per cent more portable radios than it did last year "and they were very popular then."

Santa Claus seems to be about as popular as ever among the kids but there is a trend toward fewer Santas in Ohio. For the most part, newer discount and variety stores are content to let the older department stores maintain their long traditions of having a Santa. Even they said it was getting more difficult to find neat, dependable men who can get the children's respect.

Teitelbaum said his company had tried having a Santa and found there were "too many problems involved. Sometimes they fail to show up, and then when they do, they're inebriated."

William G. Danneman, manager of the Union Co. clothing chain in Columbus, said his store has no Santa because there are too many of them already. "Some grown ups like to believe too many told them already. Besides, children and adults see too many of them up and down the street," he said.

The stores that do have a Santa reported the kids are excited as ever to see him and discounted the idea that today's youngsters are too advanced to appreciate him. "There is no indication kids are getting too sophisticated for Santa," said a Cincinnati store official.

Because of the tight labor market in Ohio, the majority of store officials said, they have had problems in getting all types of personnel. Some said they advertised both in the news media and by word of mouth among existing employees. Others took on vacationing college students. At least one said he hired persons not normally qualified because he could find no one else.

There were varying opinions as to the effect of the weather on Christmas buying. It ranged from a contention that unseasonably warm weather failed to put buyers in the Christmas "spirit" to claims that cold, snowing weather made them stay at home.

But overall, it appeared to make little difference. A spokesman for Swallen's discount store in Cincinnati, William Whaley, said "when it snows we lose some business, but then we get it back again."

Stage, the Columbus merchants' spokesman, agreed and added: "It all balances out."

Sayers Succeeds Jim Brown As NFL Rushing Champion

NEW YORK (AP) — Chicago's flashy Gale Sayers has succeeded the retired Jim Brown as the rushing champion of the National Football League with a total of 1,231 yards.

Sayers zoomed past both Leroy Kelly of Cleveland and Dick Bass of Los Angeles with 197 yards in the final game Sunday against Minnesota.

The successor to Brown carried the ball 29 times for 1,231 yards and a 5.4 average, returned 23 kickoffs for 718 yards.

However, Sayers scored only 12 touchdowns as compared to 2 in his rookie year, a record. He was the first halfback to win the rushing crown since Steve Van Buren of Philadelphia in 1949.

In combined net yardage on runs, returns, pass receiving and fumble returns, Sayers accounted for 2,440 yards, another record. Tim Brown of Philadelphia set the old mark of 2,428 in 1963.

Bart Starr, Green Bay quarterback, led the passers in the involved standings based on percentage of completions and interceptions, touchdowns and average gain. It was Starr's third title.

Bruce Gossett, Los Angeles place kicker, was the scoring leader with 113 points and a record 28 field goals.

Charley Taylor of Washington, moved from halfback to end in midseason, topped the pass receivers with 72 five more than Detroit's Pat Studstill.

Loyola Upsets Michigan State

North Carolina, Houston Triumph

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer
There's a new college basketball power in the making down New Orleans way.

That's Loyola University of the South better known as New Orleans Loyola.

The Wolfpack served notice they are on the way up from last year's 9-17 record by upsetting the fifth-ranked Michigan State Spartans 74-70 Tuesday night.

Nim Jackson, 6-foot-6 junior from Dubuque, Iowa, came off the bench and scored the winning four points in the last nine seconds. He got into the game when Barry Geraghty fouled out with 90 seconds and the score tied at 70.

It was the sixth straight victory against no defeats for the new Wolfpack.

"It was a complete team effort," said 27-year-old Ron Greene in his first year as Loyola head coach. Before the game in New Orleans he said, "We're capable of beating Michigan State," but no one took him seriously.

Unbeaten North Carolina and once-beaten Houston, the only other teams in The Associated Press Top Ten to see action, each won handily.

North Carolina, No. 3, made it seven in a row with an 81-54 romp over Florida State in the final of the Tampa, Fla., Invitational. Houston, No. 8, also chalked up its seventh straight by defeating Washington 87-65. The home court victory upped the Cougars' season record to 9-1.

Western Kentucky won the Ohio Valley Conference tourney title for the sixth time by defeating East Tennessee 72-59 in the final at Louisville. The Hill-toppers had to go overtime to beat Morehead 80-77 in the afternoon semifinals.

Boston College knocked Syracuse out of the unbeaten ranks 87-75 in the first round of the Boston Garden Invitational tourney after Massachusetts had whipped Manhattan 86-76.

North Squad Works Out in Florida Sun

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — In the balmy Florida climate, Pete Duranko was saying, "You don't seem to have the desire to hit and hustle that cold weather gives you."

Seconds after the Notre Dame tackle had spoken, 295-pound Buba Smith of Michigan State knocked two blockers winging and nearly decapitated Bernie McCall of Colorado as he attempted to get off a pass.

The play set the tempo for Tuesday's workout by the Yankee team for the Dec. 26 North-South College All-Star football game. When the players left the field, nearly every lineman had blood on him somewhere.

"From here on," said delighted North Coach Eddie Crowder of Colorado, "the momentum should continue to pick up."

Some of the most spirited scrapping was between players from Notre Dame and Michigan State, who fought to a 10-10 deadlock during the regular season.

No. 1 Notre Dame sent four players to the All-Star game and No. 2 Michigan State sent five.

Tim Stonerock Still Leads Scoring in SCO League

Circleville High School's brilliant Tim Stonerock continues to hold a lead in the South Central Ohio League individual scoring race.

Stonerock has connected on 60 field goals and 50 foul shots for 170 points in seven games. He is averaging 24.3 points per game for the Tigers.

His best effort was a 32-point spree against Grandview while his lowest production was 14 against Westfall when he watched much of the action from the bench because of early foul trouble.

Steady Dan Speakman is the Tigers' second leading scorer with 88 points. A consistent shooter, he was held to eight points by Grandview. His high effort was 17 in the Greenfield game.

FROM Speakman's 88 point total the scoring for the Tigers drops to 44 by Danny Gibbs.

Gibbs opened the season with 12 points against Westfall and scored 15 at Washington C. H. last Friday. But in five games in between, he totaled only 17 points.

Jeff Steele, the lone junior who has been able to edge into the veteran Tiger lineup as a starter, has scored 43 points.

The first five games of the season, Steele's contribution came in a relief role. However, he has started the last two tilts. Against Reynoldsburg he scored 12 markers, his top point production of the year.

Joe Winner, whose rugged rebounding has kept the Tigers in many games, has 40 points for the year — ranging from nine scored against Westfall to two against Reynoldsburg.

Scott McFarland, who usually handles the center jump for Circleville, has notched 20 points. His scoring came against Westfall, Miami Trace and Greenfield. He was shutout in other games.

Mike (Sam) Martindill has scored 10 points. He has started a couple of games and in other tilts has been the sixth man.

TIGERS with four points each are juniors Rick Congrove and Bob Tootle. Dave Horst, a sophomore who has seen some varsity action, has two points while Craig Lambert is the only varsity eager who has not scored.

The league's second leading scorer is Bob Bristley of Greenfield McClain. He is one of five McClain Tigers in the league's top 10.

Bristley has hit 51 field goals and 43 foul shots for 145 points, 25 fewer than Stonerock.

Roger Vaughan of Wilmington has moved into third place in the league with 110 points while Miami Tracer David Bihl is fourth with 107.

Tied for fifth are Jim Kensing and Jim Taylor of Greenfield with 98 each. Next comes Steve Sieg, also of Greenfield, with 91. Tim Rudduck of Wilmington also has 91 points this season.

Rounding out the top 19 are Speakman with 88; Mike Henry with 87 and Jim Creamer with 80, both of Miami Trace; and

Bruce Stewart of Greenfield with 79.

Both have 2-1 loop marks. Next come Circleville and Hillsboro at 1-2. Washington C. H. with an 0-3 mark is last.

South Central Ohio League teams have won nine of 20 games played against outside competition.

Miami Trace is 2-2 outside the loop. Greenfield is 4-1, the best in the circuit against non-league teams.

Wilmington has won one and lost two to other teams while Circleville is an even .500 with two wins and two losses.

Hillsboro and Washington have been unable to post a victory outside the loop. Both have 0-2 mark.

Tournament dates will be Jan. 14, 21 and 28. The playing site will be the Walnut Twp. gymnasium.

East, West Squads Arrive In Frisco for Shrine Tilt

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The East and West squads, which include eight All-American college grid stars, were to arrive today in San Francisco for the 42nd annual Shrine game Dec. 31.

The players will visit the crippled children Thursday in the San Francisco Shrine Hospital for whom the game is played, go from there to a lunch and then get to work.

The East will train under Head Coach Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State at the University of Santa Clara.

West Head Coach John Ralston of Stanford will use his school's practice fields. Each squad has 26 players.

"If we could have combined my team and Notre Dame, we could have given you a real show," said Daugherty.

He did the best he could, getting the maximum allowable three players from each unbeaten squad.

Daugherty took linebacker George Webster, and halfback Clinton Jones, both All-Americans, and barefooted kicker Dick Kenney from his team and linebacker Jim Lynch and halfback Nick Eddy, two other All-Americans, plus defensive end Alan Page from Notre Dame.

Daugherty will handle the East's running attack. Murray Warmath of Minnesota the defense and Paul Dietzel of South Carolina the passing game.

Ralston plans to coach the West's offensive backs with J.T. King of Texas Tech handling

Sayers Succeeds Jim Brown As NFL Rushing Champion

NEW YORK (AP) — Chicago's flashy Gale Sayers has succeeded the retired Jim Brown as the rushing champion of the National Football League with a total of 1,231 yards.

Sayers zoomed past both Leroy Kelly of Cleveland and Dick Bass of Los Angeles with 197

yards in the final game Sunday against Minnesota.

The successor to Brown carried the ball 29 times for 1,231 yards and a 5.4 average, returned 23 kickoffs for 718 yards. However, Sayers scored only 12 touchdowns as compared to 2 in his rookie year, a record. He was the first halfback to win the rushing crown since Steve Van Buren of Philadelphia in 1949.

In combined net yardage on runs, returns, pass receiving and fumble returns, Sayers accounted for 2,440 yards, another record. Tim Brown of Philadelphia set the old mark of 2,428 in 1963.

Bart Starr, Green Bay quarterback, led the passers in the involved standings based on percentage of completions and interceptions, touchdowns and average gain. It was Starr's third title.

Bruce Gossett, Los Angeles place kicker, was the scoring leader with 113 points and a record 28 field goals.

Charley Taylor of Washington moved from halfback to end in midseason topped the pass receivers with 72. Five more than Detroit's Pat Studstill.

In addition to the varsity schedule, the school administration announced the reserve slate of games the reserves have ever played.

IN ADDITION to a full SCO League reserve schedule, the Red and Black Junior varsity has two games with Chillicothe and one with Reynoldsburg.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — In the balmy Florida climate, Pete Duranko was saying, "You don't seem to have the desire to hit and hustle that cold weather gives you."

Second after the Notre Dame tackle had spoken, 295-pound Buba Smith of Michigan State knocked two blockers winging and nearly decapitated Bernie McCall of Colorado as he attempted to get off a pass.

The play set the tempo for Tuesday's workout by the Yankee team for the Dec. 26 North-South College All-Star football game. When the players left the field, nearly every lineman had blood on him somewhere.

"From here on," said delighted North Coach Eddie Crowder of Colorado, "the momentum should continue to pick up."

Some of the most spirited scrapping was between players from Notre Dame and Michigan State, who fought to a 10-10 deadlock during the regular season.

No. 1 Notre Dame sent four players to the All-Star game and No. 2 Michigan State sent five.

Unbeaten North Carolina and once-beaten Houston, the only other teams in The Associated Press Top Ten to see action, each won handily.

North Carolina, No. 3, made it seven in a row with an 81-54 romp over Florida State in the final of the Tampa, Fla., Invitational. Houston, No. 8, also chalked up its seventh straight by defeating Washington 87-65.

The home court victory upped the Cougars' season record to 9-1.

Western Kentucky won the Ohio Valley Conference tourney title for the sixth time by defeating East Tennessee 72-59 in the final at Louisville. The Hilltoppers had to go overtime to beat Morehead 80-77 in the afternoon semifinals.

Boston College knocked Syracuse out of the unbeaten ranks 87-75 in the first round of the Boston Garden Invitational tourney after Massachusetts had whipped Manhattan 86-76.

Snow Cancels Races

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — The last four races at Laurel racetrack were canceled Tuesday because of snow.

Tim Stonerock Still Leads Scoring in SCO League

Circleville High School's brilliant Tim Stonerock continues to hold a lead in the South Central Ohio League individual scoring race.

Stonerock has connected on 60 field goals and 50 foul shots for 170 points in seven games. He is averaging 24.3 points per game for the Tigers.

His best effort was a 32-point spree against Grandview while his lowest production was 14 against Westfall when he watched much of the action from the bench because of early foul trouble.

Steady Dan Speakman is the Tigers' second leading scorer with 88 points. A consistent shooter, he was held to eight points by Grandview. His high effort was 17 in the Greenfield game.

FROM Speakman's 88 point total the scoring for the Tigers drops to 44 by Danny Gibbs.

Gibbs opened the season with 12 points against Westfall and scored 15 at Washington C. H. last Friday. But in five games in between, he totaled only 17 points.

Jeff Steele, the lone junior who has been able to edge into the veteran Tiger lineup as a starter, has scored 43 points.

The first five games of the season, Steele's contribution came in a relief role. However, he has started the last two tilts. Against Reynoldsburg he scored 12 markers, his top point production of the year.

Joe Winner, whose rugged rebounding has kept the Tigers in many games, has 40 points for the year — ranging from nine scored against Westfall to two against Reynoldsburg.

Scott McFarland, who usually handles the center jump for Circleville, has notched 20 points. His scoring came against Westfall, Miami Trace and Greenfield. He was shutout in other games.

Mike (Sam) Martindill has scored 10 points. He has started a couple of games and in other tilts has been the sixth man.

TIGERS with four points each are juniors Rick Congrove and Bob Tootle. Dave Horst, a sophomore who has seen some varsity action, has two points while Craig Lambert is the only varsity career who has not scored.

The league's second leading scorer is Bob Bristley of Greenfield McClain. He is one of five McClain Tigers in the league's top 10.

Bristley has hit 51 field goals and 43 foul shots for 145 points, 25 fewer than Stonerock.

Roger Vaughan of Wilmington has moved into third place in the league with 110 points while Miami Tracer David Bihl is fourth with 107.

Tied for fifth are Jim Kensing and Jim Taylor of Greenfield with 98 each. Next comes Steve Sieg, also of Greenfield, with 91. Tim Rudduck of Wilmington also has 91 points this season.

Rounding out the top 10 are Speakman with 88; Mike Henry with 87 and Jim Creamer with 80, both of Miami Trace; and

Bruce Stewart of Greenfield with 79.

ACTION in the league this week is comparatively quiet. Miami Trace is at Grove City tonight. Wilmington plays in the first annual Clinton County Hoilday tournament at Wilmington College beginning tomorrow.

Washington C. H. is at Westfall on Friday.

The week following Christmas, Circleville is at Wilmington Dec. 29 and Waverly is at Washington C. H.

Miami Trace currently is leading the SCO League with a 3-0 record. Tied for second are Greenfield and Wilmington.

Both have 2-1 loop marks. Next come Circleville and Hillsboro at 1-2. Washington C. H. with an 0-3 mark is last.

South Central Ohio League teams have won nine of 20 games played against outside competition.

Miami Trace is 2-2 outside the loop. Greenfield is 4-1, the best in the circuit against non-league teams.

Wilmington has won one and lost two to other teams while Circleville is an even .500 with two wins and two losses.

Hillsboro and Washington have been unable to post a victory outside the loop. Both have 0-2 mark.

Bruin Star Faces Trial for Forgery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA basketball star Mike Lyn and his roommate, Larry McCollister, have been ordered to appear Jan. 6 in Superior Court for trial on charges of forgery of credit cards.

Lyn, 21, Covina, Calif., and McCollister, also 21, Lemon Grove, Calif., pleaded innocent Tuesday in Superior Court.

The men were arrested Nov. 30 after allegedly trying to buy phonograph records with a credit card reported lost.

Lyn has been suspended from playing in games but still practices with the Bruins.

"This honor is very gratifying," Stram said Tuesday, "but really it's a great compliment to Lamar Hunt, my squad and my coaches."

The leadership of Mays and my veteran players like Chris Burford was a great contribution."

The 42-year-old Stram, the only coach the Chiefs have had in their six-year history, is recognized as one of football's most astute coaches, inventor of the triple stack defense, the moving pocket and double tight end on offense and the man who has gotten the most points out of play-action passes.

His coaching record is 82 won, 47 lost, five tied, exhibitions included.

Loyola Upsets Michigan State

North Carolina, Houston Triumph

By TED MEIER

Associated Press Sports Writer

There's a new college basketball power in the making down New Orleans way.

That's Loyola University of the South better known as New Orleans Loyola.

The Wolfpack served notice they are on the way up by upsetting the fifth-ranked Michigan State Spartans 74-70 Tuesday night.

Jim Jackson, 6-foot-6 junior from Dubuque, Iowa, came off the bench and scored the winning four points in the last nine seconds. He got into the game when Barry Geraghty fouled out with 50 seconds and the score tied at 70.

It was the sixth straight victory against no defeats for the new Wolfpack.

"It was a complete team effort," said 27-year-old Ron Greene in his first year as Loyola head coach. Before the game in New Orleans he said, "We're capable of beating Michigan State," but no one took him seriously.

Unbeaten North Carolina and once-beaten Houston, the only other teams in The Associated Press Top Ten to see action, each won handily.

North Carolina, No. 3, made it seven in a row with an 81-54 romp over Florida State in the final of the Tampa, Fla., Invitational. Houston, No. 8, also chalked up its seventh straight by defeating Washington 87-65.

The home court victory upped the Cougars' season record to 9-1.

Western Kentucky won the Ohio Valley Conference tourney title for the sixth time by defeating East Tennessee 72-59 in the final at Louisville. The Hilltoppers had to go overtime to beat Morehead 80-77 in the afternoon semifinals.

Boston College knocked Syracuse out of the unbeaten ranks 87-75 in the first round of the Boston Garden Invitational tourney after Massachusetts had whipped Manhattan 86-76.

Hockey Walkout Enters 3rd Day

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League continued on the warpath today as the sport's first full-scale walkout in 40 years entered its third day.

The team's 23 players showed no indication of breaking ranks in their revolt against suspensions handed out by club owner Eddie Shore, one of hockey's most colorful — and controversial — figures.

Veteran forwards Brian Kilrea and Gerry Foley and Shore, brought together by an unidentified neutral party, met briefly late Tuesday without reaching an agreement.

Kilrea and Foley, acting as team spokesmen, insisted that suspensions of four players be lifted. Shore refused and said he will not consider anything until the Indians, with exception of the four suspended, return to practice.

The Indians, who suffered a fourth straight defeat last weekend, practiced at 8:30 a.m. Monday, then walked out prior to a scheduled afternoon workout after Shore refused to meet with them.

The players acted after Shore suspended defenseman Dale Rolfe, Bill White and Dave Amadio for alleged "indifferent play." Kilrea was suspended for the same reason after the walkout.

Kilrea said the players "feel we should be given the chance to win games and perform as a unit without constant harassment from the management."

Shore was involved in a bitter dispute in the 1953-54 season when he tried to transfer players between his club at Syracuse, N.Y., in the American League and Springfield, then in the Quebec League.

The player ranks broke, but six, including the current Springfield coach, Harry Pihirny, chose to sit out the remainder of the season.

Bucks, Flyers Are Winners

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Former Dayton High and Don May had opposite kinds of foul problems Tuesday night but both helped their teams to victories.

Hosket, making his first start of the season for Ohio State after three weeks of nursing an injured knee, drew three fouls and went to the bench early in the first half of the Buckeyes' home clash with Texas Christian. He re-entered the game with about 14 minutes to play, and his 13 points helped the Bucks overcome a Frogs' lead and win 84-78.

May, the Dayton Flyer's chief scoring threat, was the main target of an aggressive but foul-prone East Carolina defense. He took 21 of the Flyers' 35 foul shots, made 15 and totaled 21 in the 86-66 win.

Ohio State trailed by seven points with 12 minutes to play, then roared to their fourth victory in five games. Buckeye sophomore Jeff Miller hit for his per-game average of 20 points to lead all scorers.

Rudy Waterman, with 25

points, led Dayton, whose 28-for-35 night at the foul line spoiled East Carolina's chances despite the Pirates' 60 per cent field goal shooting.

In another Ohio game involving major schools, Xavier held off Miami for a 71-68 decision. The losers trailed by 11 points with two minutes to go.

High-scoring Bob Quick had 26 points for the Musketeers, with Luther Rackley adding 24. Fred Foster was the only man in double figures for Miami, scoring 21.

In other games, Akron beat Hofstra 79-61 and Bucknell downed Washington (Mo.) University in the Ruber City Classic; Steubenville beat California (Pa.) State 71-70 and Bluffton edged West Liberty 81-79 in the Quaker City Tournament; and Youngstown rolled to a 99-78 victory over Hiram.

Meredith OK; He's Ready To Rejoin Club

DALLAS (AP) — Quarterback Don Meredith of the Dallas Cowboys was ready to join the team for a workout this afternoon after giving the fans a big scare because of a stomach ache.

Meredith went to the hospital Tuesday morning suffering a "tremendous cramp."

He was found to be all right and was out doing some Christmas shopping, however, before fans learned he had left the hospital.

Meredith said he'll be ready to play Jan. 1 when Dallas meets Green Bay for the National Football League championship in the Cotton Bowl.

The Cowboys' star told the team physician, Dr. Ronald Garvey, that the cramp might have resulted from a sleeping pill and a pain pill he took Monday night for his headache.

Bucks' Pryor Wins NCAA Scholarship

Hockey Walkout Enters 3rd Day

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — The Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League continued on the warpath today as the sport's first full-scale walkout in 40 years entered its third day.

The team's 23 players showed no indication of breaking ranks in their revolt against suspensions handed out by club owner Eddie Shore, one of hockey's most colorful — and controversial — figures.

Veteran forwards Brian Kilrea and Gerry Foley and Shore, brought together by an unidentified neutral party, met briefly late Tuesday without reaching an agreement.

Kilrea and Foley, acting as team spokesmen, insisted that suspensions of four players be lifted. Shore refused and said he will not consider anything until the Indians, with exception of the four suspended, return to practice.

The Indians, who suffered a fourth straight defeat last weekend, practiced at 8:30 a.m. Monday, then walked out prior to a scheduled afternoon workout after Shore refused to meet with them.

The players acted after Shore suspended defenseman Dale Rolfe, Bill White and Dave Amadio for alleged "indifferent play." Kilrea was suspended for the same reason after the walkout.

Kilrea said the players "feel we should be given the chance to win games and perform as a unit without constant harassment from the management."

Shore was involved in a bitter dispute in the 1953-54 season when he tried to transfer players between his club at Syracuse, N.Y., to the American League and Springfield, then in the Quebec League.

The player ranks broke, but six, including the current Springfield coach, Harry Pridmore, chose to sit out the remainder of the season.

Bucks, Flyers Are Winners

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Former Dayton High and Don May had opposite kinds of foul problems Tuesday night but both helped their teams to victories.

Hosket, making his first start of the season for Ohio State after three weeks of nursing an injured knee, drew three fouls and went to the bench early in the first half of the Buckeyes' home clash with Texas Christian. He re-entered the game with about 14 minutes to play, and his 13 points helped the Bucks overcome a Frogs' lead and win 84-78.

May, the Dayton Flyer's chief scoring threat, was the main target of an aggressive but foul-prone East Carolina defense. He took 21 of the Flyers' 35 foul shots, made 15 and totaled 21 in the 86-66 win.

Ohio State trailed by seven points with 12 minutes to play, then roared to their fourth victory in five games. Buckeye sophomore Jeff Miller hit for his per-game average of 20 points to lead all scorers.

Rudy Waterman, with 25

points, led Dayton, whose 28-for-35 night at the foul line spoiled East Carolina's chances despite the Pirates' 60 per cent field goal shooting.

In another Ohio game involving major schools, Xavier held off Miami for a 71-63 decision. The losers trailed by 11 points with two minutes to go.

High-scoring Bob Quick had 26 points for the Musketeers, with Luther Rackley adding 24. Fred Foster was the only man in double figures for Miami, scoring 21.

In other games, Akron beat Hofstra 79-61 and Bucknell downed Washington (Mo.) University in the Ruber City Classic; Steubenville beat California (Pa.) State 71-70 and Bluffton edged West Liberty 81-79 in the Quaker City Tournament; and Youngstown rolled to a 99-73 victory over Hiram.

Faithful Clerk Sidelined

Solons Convene For Short Meet

Activity was on the light side during Tuesday night's abbreviated meeting of Circleville Council.

The session, the final one for 1966, lasted only 18 minutes. The short-term meet was prompted by the emergency absence of clerk Robert Shadley.

Clerk Shadley, noted for his faithful Council attendance, was involved in an accident Tuesday evening on Old Route 23. Reports indicated he escaped injury, but his wife, Dorothy, suffered what might be a fractured rib.

Due to the lack of an official recorder, the meeting was confined mostly to reports. Ervin F. Leist, city utilities manager, served as substitute clerk.

JOHN SIMISON of the Fourth Ward requested a meeting with the service committee concerning a proposed sewer line in the southern vicinity of the city-Circleville Twp. line. He also asked for an audience with the safety panel in regard to locating fire equipment south or west of the railroad tracks.

Councilman John Jenkins reported that the drive-in mailbox has been placed in the alley immediately north of the Post Office. The box previously was located in front of the postal building on Court St.

According to Jenkins, reports on the new location are favorable. One-way traffic is maintained in the alley, allowing motorists to deposit their mail from the driver's side.

Jenkins noted that additional study is due on placement of median divider strips along sections of Main and Court Sts. in order to prevent left turns to and from drive-in facilities. Blocks were placed several days ago near the Court-Main intersection, but later removed when it was learned larger trucks were having difficulty making turns.

Robert Turner, acting in the absence of solon Frank Barnhill, offered the monthly financial report. He listed the general fund balance at $67,048 and the street construction, maintenance and repair fund at $30,302.

Solicitor Kenneth Robbins, offering a progress report on the proposed North Storm Sewer project, said the next step will be for council to enact a declaration of intent. This would include the naming of one or more persons capable of serving as appraisers.

THE APPRAISER job would amount to placing a value on land needed for easements in which any resulting damages owners and the city have not reached agreement. Two properties, owned by the Elsie and Meinfelder families, are affected.

Robbins said the city then must deposit an amount of money, as determined by the appraisal, in the local clerk of courts office. The money deposited would serve as payment unless the property owners filed an objection suit.

A portion of the meeting was devoted to personal expressions for a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year. The solons' final act was to excuse Councilman Barnhill.

Special guests for the evening were members of a commercial class at Circleville High School.

Jackie, Look Approach Accord

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy and Look magazine appeared today to be approaching an agreement on her demands for exclusion of her personal recollections in the Kennedy book.

One high source said it is possible there may be an announcement today.

The same source said that efforts were being made to edit word-by-word author William Manchester's book, "The Death of a President," which is about the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

"Look is making every effort to safeguard the personal feelings of Mrs. Kennedy," other sources said.

Secret negotiations were held Tuesday in the offices of Cowles Communications, Inc., the publishers of Look, by top editors and Richard Goodwin, a former aide to President Kennedy who is acting as one of Mrs. Kennedy's advisers during the meetings aimed at settling the case out of court.

Another round of negotiations was set for today in hopes of effecting a settlement before Cowles and Harper & Row, publishers of the book, go into court Thursday to answer charges made by Mrs. Kennedy last Friday in her suit to block publication.

Attorneys for Mrs. Kennedy have drawn up a memorandum of law that they prepared for court today citing legal precedents for her suit and outlining the legal basis.

A hearing on the suit is scheduled for next Tuesday.

It was reported that Harper & Row, which plans to bring out the 300,000-word book in hard cover next April, would be willing to go along with the changes hammered out by the Look representatives and Goodwin.

Look is going ahead with plans to publish a four-part, 60,000-word serialization of the book beginning in the issue scheduled to go on the newsstands Jan. 10.

While Look and Mrs. Kennedy appeared approaching an agreement, Don Congdon, literary agent for Manchester, said the author was determined to resist changes in the book demanded by Mrs. Kennedy, who alleges invasion of privacy and breach of agreement.

Manchester was understood to have been absent from Tuesday's meeting. It was said that he was being kept informed.

A source close to the Kennedy family said Mrs. Kennedy's main objections center on details dealing with the disposition, preparation and burial of her husband's body.

"Also," the source said, "she objects to the extent of the president's injuries, which is clinical, gruesome detail, and a couple of letters among other things."

From various persons who have read the manuscript, it was learned that Mrs. Kennedy specifically had objected to these other sections:

—Her reaction to being informed that Lee Harvey Oswald had been identified as her husband's assassin. "That's absurd," she was reported to have said. "He (President Kennedy) didn't even have the satisfaction of being killed for civil rights. It had to be some silly, little Communist."

—Manchester's detailed account of how she used petroleum jelly to slip her wedding ring from her finger and place it on her husband's hand. Her ring was later removed from the president's hand at Bethesda Naval Hospital. Mrs. Kennedy reportedly wore the diamond, emerald ring Monday night when she attended a performance here of the Broadway musical "Cabaret."

—A portion dealing with how she should tell her daughter, Caroline, then 5, that her father had been killed. Mrs. Kennedy reportedly asked her mother, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, whether she felt it would be better for Caroline's nurse to tell the girl or whether she should tell Caroline herself. Mrs. Auchincloss reportedly took matters in her own hands and asked the nurse, Maud Shaw, to tell Caroline of the president's death.

—An account in Mrs. Kennedy's own words of the last night she spent with the president before moving on to Dallas on the tragic day of Nov. 22, 1963.

—Quotations from a love letter to her husband.

Another source close to the Kennedy family said Tuesday members of the Kennedy family also were upset about the references to President Johnson in the book, that they felt Manchester had treated the President in an unfair manner and that once the book was published it might have an adverse effect on Robert Kennedy's political future.

"The family decided that they would have to let that go," the source said. They couldn't put Jackie through a lawsuit just for the sake of somebody's political career."

In her suit filed in Manhattan Supreme Court last Friday, Mrs. Kennedy charged breach of contract, invasion of privacy and infringement of her copyright by unauthorized use of her name in advertisements and promotion. She said in her suit: "I am shocked that Mr. Manchester would exploit the emotional state in which I recounted my recollections to him early in 1964."

Manchester also was named as a defendant in the suit. He issued a statement last Sunday insisting that "in the summer of 1966, authorization was given by the family for publication of the book in early 1967, to be preceded by serialization in Look magazine."

Mrs. Kennedy claimed in her suit that much of the information she gave Manchester in the interviews was for background purposes to help him gain a perspective. She said it was not to be used in the manuscript because it was personal, and not historical.

Mrs. Kennedy and Sen. Robert Kennedy have insisted that they did not clear the manuscript as outlined in a memorandum of understanding with the senator and Manchester signed March 26, 1964. The memorandum specified that the book not be published before Nov. 2, 1968, and that it must be approved by Mrs. Kennedy and the senator.

If Look were restrained by the court from using the series, it could be costly to either Mrs. Kennedy or Manchester, depending on the outcome of appeals.

Look officials estimated Tuesday their losses would run from $3 million to $5 million if it is restrained, since, they said, there would be no time to put out a substitute issue. Look had planned to file Thursday a schedule of the estimated losses in the State Supreme Court.

If Mrs. Kennedy were upheld in the hearing and the two publishers appeal, Mrs. Kennedy could be asked to post an indemnity bond equal to Look's losses. If Look won an appeal, it would collect the bond, whose amount would be set by Saul S. Streit, the ranking justice on the State Supreme Court who set the hearing date for next Tuesday.

Under Manchester's contract selling serial rights to Look for $665,000, he is liable for the expenses of any court action if he were to be defeated in court. He also would be deprived of possibly millions of dollars in further earnings.

Today in Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says Soviet submarines are steering clear of U.S. coasts, the South China Sea off Vietnam and other sensitive areas.

"They don't want to be caught inadvertently in any embarrassing position," said Vice Adm. Charles B. Martell, head of the Navy antisubmarine program.

He said the Soviet program, however, includes perhaps 400 subs and involves increasing operations around the world.

He said about 45 Soviet subs are nuclear-powered and that about 120 missiles are mounted in about 40 of the more modern subs.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The military spent $23 million less in November than October — but the $5.26 billion November total was still far above original budget estimates.

The figures reflect payment of bills rather than necessarily the level of military activity.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Secret Service is collecting bits and pieces of money from — of all places — a filter screen at a sewage plant.

Agents hope they can find out who is tearing up the $20, $50 and $100 bills which have been turning up at the Blue Plains water pollution control plant since Nov. 20. Tearing the notes is a misdemeanor.

Agents now have 160 pieces and say they are not counterfeits.

Most of the bills have been torn into eight pieces. So far, the source has been narrowed only to a small sewer line serving the Oxon Run Hill area of Southeast Washington.

Dollies Are in Knickers, Longjills, Mini Skirts

LONDON (AP) — The dolly girls of swinging London are ushering in the first long winter of the world's shortest skirts.

All over London, thousands of English girls trip to work showing vast expanses of sheer, stockinged bare skins.

And on this misty, chilly, soggy, island, that's not style—it's sheer courage. Or craziness. Or both.

How do they do it? A personal poll of some of the pretties revealed a lot.

They do it because the clothing manufacturers actually brought back old-fashioned underwear, craftily camouflaged as a space age style gimmick.

Called tights, they're really fashionable longjohns from long ago.

Sold in a multitude of colors, with silver the most favored, they begin at milady's toes and, hugging flesh every inch of the way, stretch upward to clutch her waist.

These smarted-up longjohns, which could more properly be called longjills, retail in a variety of designs — diamonds, flowers, vines, birds, boats, bees, serpents, dragons, flamingoes, spiders and just plain old fisherman fish nets.

The all-enveloping body stocking, reaching from tootsies to tipples, is another comforting gadget for winter.

In Britain's wintry blasts, however, tights and body stockings are not enough. Beneath the tights and body stockings, in the middle altitudes, the girls wear a shortie version of real heavy drawers, disguised as tailored briefs or panties.

London designer Mary Quant has introduced knickers to match minidresses and miniskirts. These are really streamlined bloomers from yesteryear. Let no one ever say the British dolly girls wear no more beneath their miniskirts than the Scot is supposed to wear beneath his kilt.

Faithful Clerk Sidelined

Solons Convene For Short Meet

Activity was on the light side during Tuesday night's abbreviated meeting of Circleville Council.

The session, the final one for 1966, lasted only 18 minutes. The short-term meet was prompted by the emergency absence of clerk Robert Shadley.

Clerk Shadley, noted for his faithful Council attendance, was involved in an accident Tuesday evening on Old Route 23. Reports indicated he escaped injury, but his wife, Dorothy, suffered what might be a fractured rib.

Due to the lack of an official recorder, the meeting was confined mostly to reports. Ervin F. Leist, city utilities manager, served as substitute clerk.

JOHN SIMISON of the Fourth Ward requested a meeting with the service committee concerning a proposed sewer line in the southern vicinity of the city-Circleville Twp. line. He also asked for an audience with the safety panel in regard to locating fire equipment south or west of the railroad tracks.

Councilman John Jenkins reported that the drive-in mailbox has been placed in the alley immediately north of the Post Office. The box previously was located in front of the postal building on Court St.

According to Jenkins, reports on the new location are favorable. One-way traffic is maintained in the alley, allowing motorists to deposit their mail from the driver's side.

Jenkins noted that additional study is due on placement of median divider strips along sections of Main and Court Sts. in order to prevent left turns to and from drive-in facilities. Blocks were placed several days ago near the Court-Main intersection, but later removed when it was learned larger trucks were having difficulty making turns.

Robert Turner, acting in the absence of solon Frank Barnhill, offered the monthly financial report. He listed the general fund balance at $67,048 and the street construction, maintenance and repair fund at $30,302.

Solicitor Kenneth Robbins, offering a progress report on the proposed North Storm Sewer project, said the next step will be for council to enact a declaration of intent. This would include the naming of one or more persons capable of serving as appraisers.

THE APPRAISER job would amount to placing a value on land needed for easements in which any resulting damages owners and the city have not reached agreement. Two properties, owned by the Elsea and Meinfelder families, are affected.

Robbins said the city then must deposit an amount of money, as determined by the appraisal, in the local clerk of courts office. The money deposited would serve as payment unless the property owners filed an objection suit.

A portion of the meeting was devoted to personal expressions for a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year. The solons' final act was to excuse Councilman Barnhill.

Special guests for the evening were members of a commercial class at Circleville High School.

Jackie, Look Approach Accord

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy and Look magazine appeared today to be approaching an agreement on her demands for exclusion of her personal recollections in the Kennedy book.

One high source said it is possible there may be an announcement today.

The same source said that efforts were being made to edit word-by-word author William Manchester's book, "The Death of a President," which is about the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

"Look is making every effort to safeguard the personal feelings of Mrs. Kennedy," other sources said.

Secret negotiations were held Tuesday in the offices of Cowles Communications, Inc., the publishers of Look, by top editors and Richard Goodwin, a former aide to President Kennedy who is acting as one of Mrs. Kennedy's advisers during the meetings aimed at settling the case out of court.

Another round of negotiations was set for today in hopes of effecting a settlement before Cowles and Harper & Row, publishers of the book, go into court Thursday to answer charges made by Mrs. Kennedy last Friday in her suit to block publication.

Attorneys for Mrs. Kennedy have drawn up a memorandum of law that they prepared for court today citing legal precedents for her suit and outlining the legal basis.

A hearing on the suit is scheduled for next Tuesday.

It was reported that Harper & Row, which plans to bring out the 300,000-word book in hard cover next April, would be willing to go along with the changes hammered out by the Look representatives and Goodwin.

Look is going ahead with plans to publish a four-part, 60,000-word serialization of the book beginning in the issue scheduled to go on the newsstands Jan. 10.

While Look and Mrs. Kennedy appeared approaching an agreement, Don Congdon, literary agent for Manchester, said the author was determined to resist changes in the book demanded by Mrs. Kennedy, who alleges invasion of privacy and breach of agreement.

Manchester was understood to have been absent from Tuesday's meeting. It was said that he was being kept informed.

A source close to the Kennedy family said Mrs. Kennedy's main objections center on details dealing with the disposition, preparation and burial of her husband's body.

"Also," the source said, "she objects to the extent of the president's injuries, which is clinical, gruesome detail, and a couple of letters among other things."

From various persons who have read the manuscript, it was learned that Mrs. Kennedy specifically had objected to these other sections:

—Her reaction to being informed that Lee Harvey Oswald had been identified as her husband's assassin. "That's absurd," she was reported to have said. "He (President Kennedy) didn't even have the satisfaction of being killed for civil rights. It had to be some silly, little Communist."

—Manchester's detailed account of how she used petroleum jelly to slip her wedding ring from her finger and place it on her husband's hand. Her ring was later removed from the president's hand at Bethesda Naval Hospital. Mrs. Kennedy reportedly wore the diamond, emerald ring Monday night when she attended a performance here of the Broadway musical "Cabaret."

—A portion dealing with how she should tell her daughter, Caroline, then 5, that her father had been killed. Mrs. Kennedy reportedly asked her mother, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss, whether she felt it would be better for Caroline's nurse to tell the girl or whether she should tell Caroline herself. Mrs. Auchincloss reportedly took matters in her own hands and asked the nurse, Maud Shaw, to tell Caroline of the president's death.

—An account in Mrs. Kennedy's own words of the last night she spent with the president before moving on to Dallas on the tragic day of Nov. 22, 1963.

—Quotations from a love letter to her husband.

Another source close to the Kennedy family said Tuesday members of the Kennedy family also were upset about the references to President Johnson in the book, that they felt Manchester had treated the President in an unfair manner and that once the book was published it might have an adverse effect on Robert Kennedy's political future.

"The family decided that they would have to let that go," the source said. They couldn't put Jackie through a lawsuit just for the sake of somebody's political career."

In her suit filed in Manhattan Supreme Court last Friday, Mrs. Kennedy charged breach of contract, invasion of privacy and infringement of her copyright by unauthorized use of her name in advertisements and promotion. She said in her suit: "I am shocked that Mr. Manchester would exploit the emotional state in which I recounted my recollections to him early in 1964."

Manchester also was named as a defendant in the suit. He issued a statement last Sunday insisting that "in the summer of 1966, authorization was given by the family for publication of the book in early 1967, to be preceded by serialization in Look magazine."

Mrs. Kennedy claimed in her suit that much of the information she gave Manchester in the interviews was for background purposes to help him gain a perspective. She said it was not to be used in the manuscript because it was personal, and not historical.

Mrs. Kennedy and Sen. Robert Kennedy have insisted that they did not clear the manuscript as outlined in a memorandum of understanding with the senator and Manchester signed March 23, 1964. The memorandum specified that the book not be published before Nov. 2, 1968, and that it must be approved by Mrs. Kennedy and the senator.

If Look were restrained by the court from using the series, it could be costly to either Mrs. Kennedy or Manchester, depending on the outcome of appeals.

Look officials estimated Tuesday their losses would run from $3 million to $5 million if it is restrained, since, they said, there would be no time to put out a substitute issue. Look had planned to file Thursday a schedule of the estimated losses in the State Supreme Court.

If Mrs. Kennedy were upheld in the hearing and the two publishers appeal, Mrs. Kennedy could be asked to post an indemnity bond equal to Look's losses. If Look won an appeal, it would collect the bond, whose amount would be set by Saul S. Streit, the ranking justice on the State Supreme Court who set the hearing date for next Tuesday.

Under Manchester's contract selling serial rights to Look for $665,000, he is liable for the expenses of any court action if he were to be defeated in court. He also would be deprived of possibly millions of dollars in further earnings.

Today in Washington

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says Soviet submarines are steering clear of U.S. coasts, the South China Sea off Vietnam and other sensitive areas.

"They don't want to be caught inadvertently in an embarrassing position," said Vice Adm. Charles B. Martell, head of the Navy antisubmarine program.

He said the Soviet program, however, includes perhaps 400 subs and involves increasing operations around the world.

He said about 45 Soviet subs are nuclear-powered and that about 120 missiles are mounted in about 40 of the more modern subs.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The military spent $23 million less in November than October — but the $5.26 billion November total was still far above original budget estimates.

The figures reflect payment of bills rather than necessarily the level of military activity.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Secret Service is collecting bits and pieces of money from — of all places — a filter screen at a sewage plant.

Agents hope they can find out who is tearing up the $20, $50 and $100 bills which have been turning up at the Blue Plains water pollution control plant since Nov. 20. Tearing the notes is a misdemeanor.

Agents now have 160 pieces and say they are not counterfeits.

Most of the bills have been torn into eight pieces. So far, the source has been narrowed only to a small sewer line serving the Oxon Run Hill area of Southeast Washington.

ASHLAND, Ohio (AP)—City council passed legislation Tuesday night increasing city police and firemen's base pay from $4,920 to $5,500.

Some of man's earliest civilizations rose in what is now Iraq. It was in this land that Sumeria, Assyria and Babylonia flourished and the wheel, writing and the plow probably developed.

Dollies Are in Knickers, Longjills, Mini Skirts

LONDON (AP) — The dolly girls of swinging London are ushering in the first long winter of the world's shortest skirts.

All over London, thousands of English girls trip to work showing vast expanses of sheer-stockinged bare skins.

And on this misty, chilly, soggy, island, that's not style—it's sheer courage. Or craziness. Or both.

How do they do it?
A personal poll of some of the pretties revealed a lot.

They do it because the clothing manufacturers actually brought back old-fashioned underwear, craftily camouflaged as a space age style gimmick.

Called tights, they're really fashionable longjohns from long ago.

Sold in a multitude of colors, with silver the most favored, they begin at midlady's toes and, hugging flesh every inch of the way, stretch upward to clutch her waist.

These smarted-up longjohns, which could more properly be called longjills, retail in a variety of designs — diamonds, flowers, vines, birds, boats, bees, serpents, dragons, flamingoes, spiders and just plain old fisherman fish nets.

The all-enveloping body stocking, reaching from tootsies to topsies, is another comforting gadget for winter.

In Britain's wintry blasts, however, tights and body stockings are not enough. Beneath the tights and body stockings, in the middle altitudes, the girls wear a shortie version of real heavy drawers, disguised as tailored briefs or panties.

London designer Mary Quant has introduced knickers to match minidresses and miniskirts. These are really streamlined bloomers from yesteryear. Let no one ever say the British dolly wear no more beneath their miniskirts than the Scot is supposed to wear beneath his kilt.
